Corporate Identity
The ideal logo is the graphic distillation of an organization’s beliefs, management, products and services. Its principle purpose is to call attention, to direct, to identify. Like a signature or thumb print, a logo is unique. It represents the particular and helps define the groups it symbolizes.

Seal
When applying the TGMS seal, it must always be used in an appropriate and consistent manner, and care must be taken to avoid misuse.

Logotype
The logotype is a strong and effective identification that relies on simple, clear visual statements that can be seen and understood at a glance.

Brandmark
The brandmark is the coupled design of the seal in combination with the logotype. It is through the combination of seal and logotype that the visual identity realize its full impact.
When applying the TGMS seal, it must always be used in an appropriate and consistent manner, and care must be taken to avoid misuse. The official seal is not be distorted or altered in any way. The seal must not be enclosed within another shape, nor used with, or as part of another logo.

The logo should never be reproduced smaller than three-quarters of an inch wide. The seal must never be redrawn, spaced, or redesigned in any way. To do so would alter its essential character, weaken its effect, and reduce its trademark protection.
Logotype

Strong and effective identification relies on simple, clear visual statements that can be seen and understood at a glance. The logotype is the visual representation of the letter forms that identify the entity.

Other than the seal, using the logotype in conjunction with any other graphic shape or as a substitute for a headline or text copy is unacceptable. As with the seal, the logotype cannot be redrawn, reset, or replaced in any way. Nor can its relationship to the seal graphic, with respect to scale and placement, be changed when used as the TGMS signature.
Brandmark

The Tucson Gem & Mineral Society seal is designed to be used in combination with the logotype and the seal can appear separate from the logotype as a separate identifier and is a registered trademark for protection. It is through the combination of seal and logotype that the visual identity realize its full impact.

To ensure legibility and recognition, the seal and logotype must always have sufficient clear space around them. At no time should the legibility of the logo and the logotype be obscured by the proximity of competing visual elements such as background shapes, text, borders, colors, textures, or other symbols or trademarks.

Imagery

Visual language
Pictures are a key component of the TGMS identity. The strongest messages are combinations of image and text. But images do more than communicate content: they contribute to the emotional identification of the society. They serve to illustrate the key values of the society and put a face to who the society is, that the community around the world can identify with the society and its key values of exploration, discovery, and sharing.
