INNOVATION CAPITOL
How can we showcase San Francisco’s creative thinking?

How do we create a culture of “yes”?

How can the bureaucracy learn?

How can Market St. be more playful, dynamic, active?
HOW CAN WE BRING PEOPLE TOGETHER

Community Benefit Districts (CBD)

CBDs are non-profit tax assessment districts that are created by a local assessment district (LIZ) or a local property owner within a specified area. CBDs are created to improve the overall quality of life in specific neighborhoods or districts.

CBDs are organized around an Advisory Board and several subcommittees. Committees may include an Executive Committee charged with managing the organization's budget, an Aging Organizational Policy and Governance Committee, and a Streetscaping Committee charged with the design and implementation of public space improvements.

CBDs play important partnership roles in the site selection and permitting process. They help to define a broader citywide expansion of the Living Innovation Zones program. Lessons learned from these initial LIZs will help to define a broader citywide expansion of the Living Innovation Zones program.

Currently, San Francisco has 11 CBDs, five of which are active on Market Street. These include: The Central Market CBD, the Civic Center CBD, North of Market/Tenderloin CBD, Union Square CBD, and the Yerba Buena CBD.

CBDs are generally organized around an Advisory Board and several subcommittees. Committees may include:
- Executive Committee: charged with budget management
- Aging Organizational Policy and Governance Committee
- Streetscape Committee: charged with design and implementation of public space improvements

For the LIZ Program, CBDs play important partnership roles. They help to define a broader citywide expansion of the Living Innovation Zones program. Lessons learned from these initial LIZs will help to define a broader citywide expansion of the Living Innovation Zones program.
