

Brokenhearted Bittersweet

Music and Lyrics by Pamela McNeill

You've been lying there for hours
Cryin' on the bathroom floor
Frozen like a Spring of flowers
Fading on the saddest chord

Can't erase the night behind you
The words so strong you can't stand up
Something's shutting down inside you
The wires to your heart are cut

Your friends won't understand this
So you won't let them see
How suddenly this night has left you
Brokenhearted Bittersweet

You know you can't go back again
Now everything has changed
And even God can't help you now
Sinking in a sea of strange

Days go by and take forever
Slowly you begin to smile
Try to pull yourself together
You should get out for a little while

You guard your secret sorrow
Still everyone can see
The beauty of this pain you're wearing
Brokenhearted Bittersweet

It's like you're in a movie
Alone in some sad scene
Still driving out into the fog
Cue the music - start the dream

Somewhere out along a memory
Softened by a Summer sky
Tears of wanting make you wonder if You're ever gonna be alright

You guard your secret sorrow
Still everyone can see

The beauty of this pain you're wearing
Brokenhearted Bittersweet
Oh, but time is gonna hear you
And love will come and set you free
But part of you will always be here
Brokenhearted Bittersweet...
