Join fellow healthcare providers for a transformative 2-day continuing professional development experience guided by leaders in the field of interpersonal communication and connection. Use the CARE (Connect, Accept, Respond, Empower) model to optimize your patient outcomes, satisfaction, and self-confidence. Through personal self-reflection and shared exploration exercises you will become more aware of your own communication styles, practices and biases and identify ongoing learning goals to continue your personal and professional development long after the workshop has ended.

Growing evidence is supporting the value of the patient-provider connection in optimizing rehabilitation outcomes. Many clinicians spend considerable time and money in courses and workshops to develop their technical skills, but at best these may affect patient outcomes by 10-15%. Evidence suggests that up to 50% of clinical outcomes can be explained and predicted by the interpersonal skills of the provider.

The COMPASS Interactive Workshops have been developed by a team of academic and clinical experts in interpersonal and soft skills, with > 50 years of combined experience. Dr. David Walton PT PhD, Jasdeep Dhir PT MCiSc and Jim Millard PT MCiSc have earned recognition for their teaching and mentorship. Join them and a group of like-minded peers on a journey of self-discovery and reflection as you refine critical skills to optimize clinical outcomes.

“This should be core training for all physical therapists”

“Probably the most important course I’ve taken in my 25 year career”

“Thank you for this opportunity!”

Questions? Contact David Walton at dmwalton5@gmail.com pirlresearch.com