RPI’s New Program Slated June 25
By Kiwanis, Lions

“The New Railroads,” a program that has attracted government, industry and civic leaders in the nation’s major cities, will be presented in New England for the first time June 25 in Portland.

Nils A. Lennartson of Washington, D.C., president of the Railway Progress Institute, will make the presentation before a joint meeting of the Portland Kiwanis and Lions Clubs. Members of Portland Rotary have been invited to attend. The event will be held at noon on Tuesday, June 25, in the Mayfair Room of the Lafayette Town House.

The program includes a unique visual presentation in detail and color, emphasizing the varied forms of freight service which the nation’s railroads now offer to industry.

A former Maine resident, Gannett Publishing Company reporter and assistant publicity manager for the Maine Central Railroad, Lennartson has served as president of the Railway Progress Institute for the past three years. His organization consists of 181 railway supply industries employing more than 600,000 people in 45 states.

Lennartson was formerly Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs, and also served with six other cabinet officers in the federal government from 1948 to 1961. The speaker will be introduced by E. Spencer Miller, president of the Maine Central Railroad.

State officials, as well as business and community leaders of Greater Portland, will be guests at the luncheon meeting.

50,000,000 Gallons
MeC To Originate Bunker C Shipments
For Brown Company Mills At Berlin

Arrangements completed in May between the Brown Company, Berlin, N. H., the Paragon Oil Company division of Texaco, Inc., and the Maine Central Railroad will result in a substantial increase in oil tonnage for the Port of Portland.

The movement, which spokesmen said will involve more than 50,000,000 gallons of bunker C fuel oil annually, is scheduled to begin in the fall of 1968. It will mean additional tanker business for the Port and use of some of the largest insulated tank cars ever seen on the railroads of Maine.

The companies said rate savings offered by the Maine Central Railroad through use of super-jumbo tank cars influenced selection of Portland for the oil movement despite energetic competition by transportation interests in several Canadian and New England ports.

One of the largest oil contracts ever negotiated for rail movement in the Portland area, the operation will supply fuel to the big Brown Company paper mills in Berlin, N. H., now converting its systems from coal. The bunker C oil will travel from Portland via the Maine Central Railroad to Danville Junction, near Auburn, and via the Canadian National Railway to Berlin.

Officials of Paragon are working closely with the Brown Company and the Maine Central Railroad to develop traffic and engineering details that will insure a smooth flow of oil cars over the entire route. The preliminary work includes arranging an adequate supply of huge, new, 23,000-gallon tank cars equipped with heating coils, making necessary handling arrangements at South Portland, and completion of extensive unloading and storage facilities at Berlin.

A PLAQUE FOR PORTLAND—The Maine Central Railroad was one of several Maine firms and organizations who sponsored a series of awards presented last month by the Maine State Park and Recreation Commission’s Keep Maine Scenic Program. The awards were for outstanding efforts to prevent blight and litter throughout the state. Above, Royden Cote, MeC market manager, presents one of the awards to Barnett M. Shur, corporation counsel, City of Portland, for the city’s efforts to dispose of junk automobiles.
TO MY FELLOW EMPLOYEES:

The process of government, in these times, seems to consist largely of efforts to eliminate deficits of one sort or another . . . of closing "gaps" between the number and capabilities of intercontinental ballistic missiles in the arsenals of the U. S. and the Soviet Union; between the unguided truth and the official reports of military success in the Far East; and between astronomical federal spending and down-to-earth federal revenue.

And of all these "gaps," the last is easily the one that concerns us most as businessmen, railroad men and taxpayers. It concerns us of the railroad industry, perhaps, even more than it concerns the people of other forms of transport, because truckers, barge operators and airlines can see a substantial portion of their taxes coming back in the form of better, faster highways, improved waterways, tax-provided terminals, navigation and communication facilities. With the exception of relatively small appropriations for the new Federal Railroad Administration, the current research and development of high-speed passenger trains and contributions toward the operating expenses of the Alaska Railroad, our industry's taxes don't come back . . . they disappear forever in the insatiable maw of a United States Government whose chief objective is popularity, and our industry continues to go it alone, owning, building and maintaining its own roadways, its own stations, and its own signals and communications.

In sharp contrast are the planned expenditures for highways this year . . . $4 billion, 372 million . . . and the admission that the Federal Interstate Highway System is only three-fifths completed, and that the life of the highway trust fund—established under President Eisenhower in 1952—will have to be extended beyond its 1970 completion target date.

In an effort to close the "gap" between highway spending and revenue, President Johnson has again proposed "a broad program of transportation user charges to apply the test of the marketplace to these activities, and to relieve the general taxpayer of some of the burden of financing special benefits for certain individuals and industries."

Specifically, the President has proposed an increase in the federal tax on diesel fuel and a graduated use tax on heavy trucks. This would result in additional federal highway revenue of 239 million in fiscal 1969. Other user charges levied on airlines and barge operators would return about 47 millions.

It's difficult not to appear cynical about this user tax proposal, because President Johnson is the third resident of the White House in succession to call for similar action. Like many efforts to require fair-share taxes of the trucking industry in several states, including our own, Johnson's user tax proposal faces almost certain defeat at the hands of the potent highway transportation lobby.

The Administration's desires for adequate payment for use of government-provided facilities will be denied; the "gap" between federal spending and income will widen proportionately; and the general taxpayer . . . you, I, our Company and thousands of others, will be called upon to close it with a 10 per cent income tax surcharge. Proposed by the President to become effective in 1968, this surcharge would mean an additional cent on each dollar of income, and return more than $10 billion to the government in 1969.

Because no potent lobby opposes it, and because it's the lesser of several possible tax evils, the surcharge measure probably will pass, adding further burden to corporations and individuals already oppressively laden with taxes by not only the federal government, but by state and local assessors as well.

Closing the "gap" between government spending and revenue in this manner will undoubtedly create another "gap" . . . between heavily burdened taxpayers and their free-spending government. A more reasonable alternative would be drastic reductions in government expenditures, and at the same time, a practical, sincere effort to require truck, barge and airline operators to bear their full and fair share of what it costs our government to keep them in business.

A Call For Railroaders

W. M. Dox, Jr., an official of the Seashore Electric Railway at Kennebunkport, asked us for help the other day. Not us, really, but the hundreds of retired Maine Central railroaders who might like to get back to railroading a little bit. Seashore, he says, is getting bigger by the minute, and they could use some help, especially from people with railroad know-how and enthusiasm.

It's a volunteer organization, a part of the New England Electric Railroad Historical Society, and now has more than 100 trolleys and several miles of track. Dox says they can use people with experience in all branches of railroading.

There's no pay, except in fun and satisfaction. Dox said the membership fee is $2 for persons over 60, and that applicants may correspond with Joseph B. Doherty, membership secretary, New England Railway Historical Society, 40 Hawthorne Avenue, Arlington, Mass., 02174.

In the spring a young man's fancy (and an old man's too) lightly turns to thoughts of ... new cars. Here's the list: Clerk Conne Begin, a Mercury; Foreman Warren Richardson, a Ford Galaxy; Foremen Dick Delano and Glenn McCormor, a new Plymouth Furie; Carman Al Wentworth, a Ford Fairlane; Machinist John Eames, a Toyota sedan; Machinist Bill Trufant, a Chey pick-up; Laborer Tazy Gibbs, a Ford pick-up and Foreman Chick Pooler, a Pontiac.

WATERVILLE STATION

The annual District No. 4 Track Foremen's meeting was held April 30 at the Roosevelt Motor Lodge, Waterville.

Track Supervisor Maurice Thorne has returned from two weeks vacation, working at camp and visiting his daughter in New Hampshire.

Also vacationing this past month was Bill Cook from the freight office, and Basil Higgins, yard office.

We hear that Clerk Ken Snow saw Smokey the Bear recently.

WATERVILLE YARDS

We extend our sympathy to the family of John Goodale, who passed one month. Before retirement, Mr. Goodale worked on switcher No. 3 on Westbound.

Another of our boys has made the grade. Paul Barrows was elected president of the Myrtle Street P.T.A. Cliff Clark, engineer on WS-1—SW-2, is sporting a new Chevvy.

Congratulations and many good wishes for retired Yardsmaster and Mrs. Carl Proctor, who celebrated their 50th Anniversary recently. A party was held by the family at Casco Bay.

Billy Gordon, Trainman, caught a yard switcher doing yard spare work. Welcome back to Jake Hanson, Car Inspector. He has been convalescing from an operation.

Harry Gibbs, retired Conductor, now residing in Florida year round, told Galen Wheeler, Conductor of WS-1—SW-2, that he still goes out dancing two or three nights a week, which helps him keep in shape.

Nice to see our young Bill Rack clerk, Roger St. Amand, filling in for Lt. Joe Desmar, who is training with the National Guard.

Don Bartlett, spare conductor—brakeman, has returned from his trip to Iowa. By the looks of things, according to the newspaper, tornadoes still make that state pretty hazardous. Could be it was that he was such a hurry that he created the tornado. Anyway, he said he made it in 36 hours the first run and 40 hours on the return.

Larry St. Amand, Trainman on WH-2—HW-1, is having quite a time making the grade as a farmer so he says. He has been feeding the mice with De-con, his chickens got hold of it, so now he's out of business.

Guy Coro, Brakeman, Switcher No. 4, says that George Buck, Car Inspector is an "old buck", because his son who works as a Janitor, Car Cleaner, on 3rd trick, is the young buck.

We saw Charlie Harper recently on B-11. So he's well and that's good. Glad to have you back, Charlie.

A newcomer in the clerk field—Bob Silvis, formerly of Yarmouth, has been busy filling in these past two weeks for Connie Mason, who made a trip south visiting relatives and friends.

ROCKLAND

Glad to welcome back retired General Agent Frank Carlyle who paid us a visit on his return from sunny Florida. Frank, all tanned up, is keeping busy as usual. No sooner had he arrived than was at it again, cleaning up the yard, mowing lawns and opening the cottage for summer. He says retired Agent Operator Don Pomerleau wanted to be remembered for all.

Other visitors to the freight office were retired Conductor Frank Prestcott and retired car inspector Ted Anderson.

Your correspondent, Wendell Lewis, paid a visit to "Fainne" Snowman, who has been busy around the house, planting a garden, flowers, and even had a new hot top put on his drive. This is to keep the wheels of the "pickle" from getting muddy. Father advises Clam Committee Chairman Cote to bring three yard sticks to measure the two and one half yard clams Father has uncovered. A claim that size should make a fair chowder.

We wish to extend our congratulations to machinist C. E. "Jakey" Walker for his alertness and responsible action, which may have prevented a serious derailment.

"Jakey's" careful inspection of Engine 574, while preparing this unit for NJ-2, revealed a badly cracked right front wheel, which if allowed to continue in service would have probably been disastrous. A relief crane and crew from Waterville under Wreckmaster Nubert Estabrook changed out the trucks and hauled Unit 574 to Waterville shop for wheel change. A well deserved letter of commendation from the Company was sent to Jake by G. P. Silva, Superintendent of Locomotive Maintenance.

The last meeting of the Maine Association of Railroad Veterans was held April 28 at the Grange Hall, Fairfield Center, with 230 members in attendance. A roast beef dinner was served at 1 p.m. followed by a business meeting and an enjoyable entertainment furnished by the students of Waterville High School.
The affair was capably handled by the Waterville Committee under the supervision of their Chairman Kenneth Reed. They deserve a vote of thanks for a fine job well done and greatly appreciated by the membership. It was probably one of the best times ever to be promoted by the Railroad Veterans.
We were all saddened to hear of the death of Mr. Herbert P. Wells in the Massachusetts Memorial Hospital, Boston. Mr. Wells was our oldest member and was also a Past President of the United Association of Railroad Veterans. Cards and a floral tribute were sent by the Association. Our sincerest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Wells.
James Kelley, a retired Maine Central Freight Conductor and a patient at Veterans Hospital, Togus, is comfortable and was pleased with the cards that came after our request in the Messenger.
Mrs. Ernest T. Biladeau, a patient in the Laconia General Hospital, Laconia, N. H., is improving and hopes to be home soon.
Wallace L. Allen, 100, a retired Maine Central locomotive engineer, died in April at St. Petersburg, Florida, where he had spent winters for many years.
A summer resident of Oakland, Maine, Mr. Allen was a native of Canton. He began his railroad career in 1888 on the Rumford Falls and Buckingham and later became a Maine Central engineman. He retired on May 31, 1937 after a railroad career of almost 50 years.
He had been a winter resident of St. Petersburg since his retirement, and was active among the city's senior citizens. On his 100th birthday, last November, St. Petersburg Mayor Don James proclaimed "Wallace L. Allen Day."

Thanks!
Mrs. Ellen Lyden, with long service as a PBX operator in the General Offices, Portland, retired recently. She wishes to thank the many fellow employees and other friends who provided a retirement purse.
