ANNOUNCEMENTS TO MEMBERS

ANNUAL MEETING
The 1986 Annual Meeting of the ICMA will be held at the Hilton Hotel, New York City, on Thursday, February 13, at 12:15. Cash bar and refreshments will be available. The Committee on the State of the Discipline in American Universities will present a report on its findings to date. NOTICE OF THE MEETING AND A PROXY FOR THOSE UNABLE TO ATTEND ARE FOUND WITH THE RENEWAL NOTICE ON PAGE 3.

SURVEY OF THE DISCIPLINE
As part of the survey of medieval art studies in American colleges and universities initiated by the Governing Board of ICMA, the Committee on the State of the Discipline has drawn up a questionnaire to be sent to all individual members in the United States and Canada. The questionnaire, which is concerned with teaching positions in medieval art history, addresses the following issues:

1) The range of medieval fields being taught, in terms of media, of chronological extent, and of geographical distribution.
2) The relative vulnerability of medieval studies within the matrix of promotion, tenure, and retention of positions.
3) The vitality of medieval studies in the curricula of departments of the history of art and of institutions as a whole.
4) The availability of funds and opportunities for the preparation of publications, and the adequacy of avenues for their publication.

Medieval is understood as embracing western Europe, Byzantium, and the Middle East between ca. 300 and 1400 CE.

The findings of the survey will be published in the ICMA Newsletter as they emerge. The results of an earlier survey on the ratio of jobs to job applicants in medieval art and the number of Ph.D. programs in art history with tenured medievalists appeared in the Winter 1984 issue of the Newsletter. It is hoped the publication of the data gathered will stimulate thought about the condition of medieval art studies and the needs of the discipline. Members are urged to complete the forthcoming questionnaire as soon as possible and return it to the chair of the Committee on the State of the Discipline, Annamarie Weyl Carr, Department of Art History, Southern Methodist University, Dallas, TX 75275.

SUMMER INSTITUTES AND SEMINARS

Among the Institutes sponsored by the Division of Education Programs of the NEH the following are of particular interest:

THE EARLY PRINTED BOOK, 23 June – 1 August, offered at the Newberry Library Center for Renaissance Studies by Professor Henry-Jean Martin, Ecole Nationale des Chartes. Beginning with the transition from the manuscript to the printed book, the Institute will analyze the changing relationship between the book as a material object and its socio-cultural context through the 18th century. Topics will include: identities of and interactions between printers, publishers, and readers; the impact of the government and the Church on the history of the book; methods of production; the relationship between text and image; and the history of libraries. The course will be taught in French and will focus on France, but comparative materials from other western European countries will be introduced. Stipends funded by the NEH are available. Faculty, qualified graduate students, and unaffiliated scholars are welcome to apply before 1 March, 1986. For more information and application forms contact: The Newberry Library Center for Renaissance Studies, 60 W. Walton St., Chicago, IL 60610. Tel. (312) 943-9090.

THE TECHNOLOGY OF HISTORIC ARCHITECTURE, 28 July – 22 August, led by Robert Mark, Professor of Architecture and Civil Engineering in the School of Architecture, Princeton University. The Institute will explore the applications of modern engineering analysis to amplify traditional historical study. A program of lectures, seminars and research will focus on engineering approaches and how their results alter historical perceptions of pre-industrial architecture. Stipends funded by the NEH are available. For further details and application information, write: Cynthia Winkelman, NEH Summer Institute, School of Architecture, Princeton University, Princeton, NJ 08544. Deadline for applications is 1 March.

Of the 56 Summer Seminars for College Teachers funded by the NEH in 1986, two will include consideration of the pictorial arts of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance.

LATIN CHRISTIAN TRADITION IN MEDIEVAL LITERATURE, 16 June – 8 August, conducted by Professor R. E. Kaske, English Department, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York. The Seminar will attempt to provide a method for approaching systematically some of the large bodies of learning and thought that form the basis of the written tradition in the medieval period. This includes the Vulgate Bible, its voluminous commentaries, encyclopedias of various kinds, the liturgy, sermons and homilies, and the pictorial arts. A passable reading knowledge of Latin is required. Applications must be submitted by 1 March. For additional information, write Professor Kaske, English Department, Goldwin Smith Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY 14853.

DANTE'S FLORENCE, 16 June – 8 August, offered by Professor Charles T. Davis (Tulane University) in Florence, Italy. The Seminar will seek to explore as fully as possible the historical Florentine culture of the Dante (1250-1330). The first week will be devoted to studying the physical city itself - its structure, plan, walls, churches, palazzi, piazzas and bridges. This will be followed by an analysis of topical issues in Florentine history and culture: its literature, architecture, sculpture and painting, its guilds, religious life, agriculture, war and taxation, education, and political thought. Applications, due 1 March, and additional information may be obtained from Professor C. Davis, Department of History, Tulane University, New Orleans, LA 70118.

SUMMER SEMINARS IN PALEOGRAPHY AT HARVARD, sponsored jointly by the Committee on Medieval Studies at Harvard University and the Harvard Summer School, to be held 23 June – 1 August. Two courses are scheduled: a seminar given by Paul Meyvaert (Medieval Academy of America, Emeritus) entitled "Medieval Latin Paleography" which will examine the development of Latin scripts in the west up to about 1500 CE and a second seminar on "Vernacular Paleography," details to be announced later.
Each seminar will be limited to 10 students. There will be no charge for tuition and a limited number of fellowships of up to $500 will be available. Requests for application forms should be sent to: Prof. John Murdoch, Chairman, Harvard Committee on Medieval Studies, Harvard University, 69 Dunster St., Cambridge, MA 02138. The deadline for complete applications is 31 March 1986.

EXHIBITIONS

The earliest and perhaps most important work exhibited is the 10th-century Spanish manuscript of the Beatus Commentary. Other notable manuscripts include an English Apocalypse of about 1250 with probably the earliest cycle of illustrations of the Apocalypse created in England; a portion of the Apocalypse from a Moralized Bible made in Paris, ca. 1235, for Blanche of Castle and her son Louis IX; an Apocalypse with commentary in French made in Ghent ca. 1475 by the Master of Mary of Burgundy; and excerpts of an Apocalypse, illuminated in Paris about 1415 for Jean, Duc de Berry.

politan Museum of Art, New York. An exhibition of about 300 objects, selected from major museum collections in Europe and the United States, will reflect the artistic and cultural vitality of the city of Nuremberg, historically one of Europe's most important urban centers. The exhibition focuses on the period from the 14th through the first half of the 16th century, during which Nuremberg evolved from an important but largely self-contained Late Gothic city within the Holy Roman Empire, to a Renaissance center whose artistic, humanistic, technological and scientific endeavors were of far-reaching consequence. Included are key works by major artists such as the monumental Christ and the Virgin by Veit Stoss from the Sebaldiskirche, stone sculptures by Adam Kraft, a large series of bronzes by Peter Vischer the Elder and his family, panels from an altarpiece by Hans Baldung Grien, and a choice selection of drawings and prints by Albrecht Durer. The exhibition has been organized jointly by the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Germanisches Nationalmuseum. An illustrated catalogue will be available.
