Get Ready to Write

A multisensory approach to build a foundation for writing

Group Objectives:

- Learn activities to promote fine motor strength, coordination and proper grasping skills
- Develop pre-writing skills: forming shapes, tracing letters, coloring between the lines and drawing
- On-going growth of peer interaction while learning pre-writing skills

This group is designed for pre-school to pre-K children who are not yet able to write independently and could benefit from developing efficient fine motor skills. The group’s curriculum and interactive lessons uses concepts from the Handwriting Without Tears program.

This fun and interactive group incorporates songs, multi-medias and engaging activities to build a solid foundation in preparation for learning how to write.

Each session incorporates sensorimotor play to help build upper body strength and promote organization of the body in preparation for writing activities.

This group meets once a week for one hour. For increased benefit, participation from a parent/guardian is required the last 10 minutes of each session in order to meet with the group leader(s) for a recap of what was covered and to receive informational handouts and activities to practice at home.

All groups are based on a private-pay format.
