JERSEY CITY, NJ, June 12, 2015—Mana Contemporary announces the addition of Mana Wine to its rapidly expanding art center and services portfolio.

Mana Wine is uniquely positioned to serve a dual function as a high-end wine storage company and as an art-centric cultural attraction for wine enthusiasts, presenting a groundbreaking concept in the wine storage industry.

Mana Wine safely houses thousands of cases of wine for private and commercial clients and is quickly becoming one of the most respected wine storage facilities in the Tri-State area. In 2015, Mana Wine will launch a programming arm with events such as wine tastings, winemaker dinners, classes, and seminars, all held at Mana Contemporary, one of the largest and most innovative contemporary art organizations in the U.S.

“Fine art and fine wine are naturally at home with each other,” said Mana Contemporary founder and president, Eugene Lemay. “The addition of wine brings an enhanced cultural experience to our arts community.”

Mana Contemporary’s Jersey City flagship, with more than eight world-class galleries ranging in size from 2,000 to 50,000 square feet, a 200-seat auditorium with multimedia capabilities, and a 100-seat restaurant, is well-positioned as a stunning backdrop for events for oenophiles and novice wine drinkers alike.

Mana Wine's 22,000-square-foot storage facility is conveniently located in a low-risk flood zone just outside Manhattan near the Holland Tunnel and features state-of-the-art climate control and security systems. Mana Wine provides barcode tracking for quick, easy, and accurate delivery of any portion of clients' collections, as well as any online inventory system where clients can view their collections and place orders twenty-four hours a day. Mana Wine is part of a nationwide portfolio of celebrated companies dedicated to serving moving and storage needs with sophisticated inventory management and outstanding customer service.
