You will find this annual report packed with program innovations and inspiring customer successes throughout Program Year 2017 within the scope of our competitive grant achievements and Workforce Innovation & Opportunity Act funded projects. We honor and acknowledge the hard work of our service providers, industry leaders, and community members who contributed to these accomplishments. We recognize the commitment of our board to provide direction, and the efforts of our outstanding staff.

We look back with gratitude to past board members who served tirelessly in dedication to our region, and we welcome new members with the start of Program Year 2018. Our board represents some of the brightest minds across both private and public sectors. The relationships and partnerships we have created in the past will propel us forward into the next program year.

Thank you for your investment in our shared mission and vision.

CUSTOMIZED TRAINING COHORT

Most advanced healthcare training programs require completion of college-level coursework before students can apply. Because this coursework is not a program, but a collection of math, science and other college classes, many students—and particularly low-income/working students—face challenges at this critical stage on the healthcare career pathway. The Health Workforce for the Future (HWF) pre-requisite cohort at South Seattle College builds from lessons learned and is designed to streamline this process with more efficient course sequencing, a predictable schedule, contextualized curriculum, and targeted advising and support.

The reasons I would like to become a registered nurse are many ... I would love to motivate others who are in the same shoes as I was some years ago. I want to make them understand that hard work pays off, and to persevere and believe. I have always been a good student and have been able to achieve the goals that I set for myself. My children look up to me as a role model, and their grades at school reflect that. I want to be an exemplary person for my children so that they too can achieve their goals. - Sagal

CUSTOMER SUCCESS

SAGAL is a single mother of two children ages twelve and fourteen. Together, they make their home in south Seattle.

In 2013, when Sagal arrived in Seattle she sought assistance from her local welfare office where her caseworker connected her with cash assistance and told her about the Health Careers for All program. With an interest in healthcare, Sagal enrolled and joined a training cohort at South Seattle College to prepare for and enter nursing.

To put food on the table, she also began part-time work doing remote medical interpretation from home, earning $500 monthly to help support her family and moved off cash assistance. She completed all of nursing’s pre-requisite courses with competitive marks, moving on to the next step—the licensed practical nursing (LPN) program.

Throughout the intensive LPN program, Sagal says she benefited from the support of students and “navigator” (career counselor), and, in spring 2015 she successfully completed the program. That September, after passing the national credentialing exam and earning her state license, Sagal began full-time work as an LPN in a local rehabilitation center, earning $27 an hour. Sagal’s drive to become a nurse wasn’t yet satisfied – she stayed in close contact with her navigator and enrolled in the Health Workforce for the Future program in 2016 and was accepted into the LPN-to-RN ladder program at Highline College shortly after. She graduated with her associates degree in nursing (ADN) and secured a full-time registered nurse position at $39 an hour in September 2017. Sagal plans to continue her journey, with a final career goal of becoming an advanced registered nurse practitioner (ARNP).

We congratulate Sagal and the hundreds of individuals who have dedicated their lives to our healthcare while building a prosperous future for themselves and their families.
UPSKILL / BACKFILL PROJECT SUITE

3 projects with unique challenges within three sectors—training incumbent workers to fill mid-to-high skill jobs as older workers retire, and recruiting new workers to fill the entry-level positions vacated.

1. PROJECT CONNECT: ACCELERATED CAREERS IN MANUFACTURING

8 backfill positions filled

Partner contracts launched for Lake Washington Institute of Technology and Everett Community College, Corporate and Continuing Education. Community partners are Neighborhood House and TRAC Associates.

2. FOCUS ON HEALTHCARE EMPLOYER NEEDS

LINKAGES TO EMPLOYMENT ACTIVITIES PRE-RELEASE 2 WORKFORCE INTEGRATION NETWORK (LEAP2WIN)

Located within a justice facility, the Maleng Regional Justice Center houses a unique American Job Center and WorkSource Seattle-King County site. This effort launched at the end of Program Year 2016 serve residents with pre-release and post-release employment services and wrap-around career development.

I personally found the classroom environment a refreshing relief from my time in my unit as it was a place where my input was welcomed and respected. Simply being treated as an adult and an equal for a few hours a day made my time here a much more positive experience, and being given the time, resources, and guidance to actually do some productive work was invaluable.

As a graduate of this program I want to let you know how invaluable this class has been, not just for the educational and employment aspects, but for the emotional, as well.

Being incarcerated for the first time at my age (45) has been quite a shock and often times quite confusing. Not knowing what is going to become of me for the rest of my life—will I ever find work or an apartment again?—with a felony record.

Signing up for LEAP2WIN has been a truly wonderful experience. The class instructors Deanna and Eddie have been superior leaders from day one. Always treating each and every one of us with respect and dignity. That quick reminder that we are human beings for a couple of hours a day for those four weeks has made all the difference in the world to my own outlook.

WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT COUNCIL OF SEATTLE-KING COUNTY
When Gabe first visited WorkSource North Seattle, he had been out of work for 10 months—having been laid off from his previous registered nurse (RN) position at Northwest Hospital. Experiencing a death in his family, Gabe had difficulty staying focused at work. Gabe benefited from group therapy sessions with a licensed therapist and was able to work on his resume and interview skills. With a little repositioning on his resume, Gabe immediately began receiving interview requests. He was soon offered and accepted employment as an RN with the Northwest Kidney Center.

When Henry reached out to WorkSource, he was about to lose her housing and had taken a stop-gap position with an online jewelry retailer. Staff were able to do a comprehensive review of her job search strategy, including interview, resume, and cover letter. Wendy re-entered her career pathway, securing a full-time position as a Contract Administrator IV in construction with KBA Inc., making $32 an hour with full benefits.

MARY had thrived in project management, but at 61, she found herself unemployed. She met with Jody, her case manager at South Seattle College, and enrolled in an online project management training course. During the application process, Jody helped to support Mary through job leads, as well as support services including gas cards and tab fees for her car. But most importantly, Jody listened.

“Counselors like Jody provide the opportunities to get your life moving in the right direction,” Mary said. “She is amazingly knowledgeable and efficient … but Jody doesn’t stop there. The encouragement, motivation, and understanding she provides are priceless. She truly goes above and beyond to help her clients.”

In February, Mary was hired to a full-time Project Manager position, earning $26 an hour.

Henry had worked for Intel Corporation for almost 20 years before he was laid off. He spent several months applying for jobs, without many interviews, before a friend referred him to WorkSource. Staff members earned his trust over time. After some practice in mock interviews and sharpening his communication skills, Henry landed an IT job paying $39 an hour, and was promoted within two months to a Project Manager role overseeing 23 employees, earning a salary of $92,050 a year.

Customer Success

KIM faced a number of challenges when she began the Rainier Youth Services program. At twenty four, she was a single mother to her one-year-old boy, and had been caring for him by herself since her second trimester. Kim needed to find stable housing, and was also caring for her mother battling dementia. Staff began to help Kim formulate a resume and cover letter, and helped her improve her job readiness. Kim secured a position with First Student transportation at $15 an hour, enough to move off Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF). She wrote afterward, “A big burden is lifted.”

MARJINA is 22 years-old, with recent success in education and training through WorkSource Affiliate Tukwila’s YouthSource programs in January 2018. Facing extensive challenges in her community and family, including violence and gang activity, Marjina chose to not continue high school after the 9th grade. After six years sustaining criminal activity in order to survive, Marjina returned to school and sought out WorkSource Affiliate Tukwila as a resource. Marjina’s main goal has been for self-sufficiency and to put an end to her experience of generational poverty.

In only six months, Marjina has successfully completed her GED and participated in Renton Technical College’s graduation ceremony. Marjina also completed an internship at the City of SeaTac, as well as extensive occupational skills training, earning certificates in food handling, CPR, AED, and First Aid. Marjina’s drive, motivation, resilience and skill are an inspiration to her community and to youth everywhere. She is currently participating in King County’s “Lift Every Youth” internship, which is an intensive, real-world leadership training program. At the conclusion of her internship, she will pursue a college education and employment, with the support of WorkSource Affiliate Tukwila and her case manager.
Throughout his years in the foster care system, nineteen-year-old Ronnie experienced near-constant chaos in his home life. Despite this, he dreamed of thriving on his own, both financially and professionally. When Ronnie first visited the WorkSource youth-focused affiliate, he had been out of school for a year, but in less than a month, he passed all four GED tests. Ronnie was interested in engineering, and his case manager and employment specialist coordinated to get him an interview with AIM Aerospace. Unfortunately, Ronnie’s foster placement ended, and he was forced to move to Everett. Three weeks later, he was moved again—back to Seattle. He started the internship with AIM Aerospace in December 2017, but his living situation changed again shortly after, and he was forced into homelessness. His case manager found him a bed at a shelter through YouthCare, and he was put on a transitional housing program to find his first apartment. In the midst of all this, Ronnie thrived at AIM Aerospace, and they offered him a full-time position at the end of his internship, bringing him a step closer to achieving his dreams.

A recent immigrant from the Philippines, Reston was enrolled briefly at Garfield High School, but left after learning his diploma from the Philippines was non-transferable. He was referred to Learning Center Seattle by his counselors. Reston explored career opportunities with his case manager and expressed an interest in veterinary sciences. Together they formed a plan—earn his GED, start a veterinary internship, and enroll in Seattle Central College. He earned his GED by the spring and simultaneously built a relationship with Emerald City Pet Rescue, where he began as a kennel attendant. In summer, he also began studying at Seattle Central. Emerald City Pet Rescue was thrilled to work with Reston—noting his work ethic and willingness to learn. During his last day as an intern, the shelter surprised Reston with a lunch party and offered him a full-time kennel attendant position. He accepted with excitement, as the position aligned with his goals and worked in tandem with his studies. He also earned a raise, allowing him to visit his mother in the Philippines and offer financial support to his family. Reston completed his first year at Seattle Central in spring 2018, driven by his passion for working with animals, and plans to transfer to the University of Washington with his Associate’s to earn a veterinary degree.

PRIOR LEARNING ASSESSMENTS
COUNCIL FOR ADULT & EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING (CAEL)

Staff are equipped to utilize a prior learning assessment form that’s streamlined across the college district to provide credit to eligible students for their work experience and nontraditional education.

KEY PROJECT ACTIVITIES

- Worked with Seattle Colleges District to finalize policy and financial mode, as well as to create and finalize a referral form
- Rewrote Supportive Services and Needs-Related Payments policies that include resources to pay for Prior Learning Assessment (PLA) fees—the first such known policy in the nation
- Gave presentations on the model for other regions including the CAEL conference in San Diego and National Association of Workforce Boards in Washington, D.C.
- Sustainability strategy conversations with partner colleges and the Seattle College District to reduce financial barriers and ensure access to the resource for customers

TOOLS & RESOURCES

SELF-SUFFICIENCY STANDARD & CALCULATOR
The Self-Sufficiency Standard & Calculator help service provider staff, customers, and partners assess current budget and individual/family needs, calculating next steps needed to achieve long-term financial self-sufficiency.

LEARNING EXCHANGE
Bringing career and professional development, training, and cross-training resources to WorkSource staff members. Guided by standards set by the National Association of Workforce Development Professionals (NAWDP).

CAREER COACH & JOBSCAN
We forge partnerships with resource developers like Career Coach (Economic Modeling Specialists, Inc.) and Jobscan to bring professional development resources to a broad range of users, from career counselors to individual youth, adults, and businesses.

MAP YOUR CAREER
Over 50,000 young people and adults benefit from Map Your Career’s visual representations of core occupations and pathways within Seattle-King County industries.

TALENT PIPELINE APPLICATION
The Talent Pipeline Application is an interactive, online resource presenting regional job and labor market information for a broad user base, including job seekers, career counselors, researchers, students, employers, educators, and the press.
