Please read these Conrad Challenge Rules and Regulations in their entirety before registering for the Challenge. Your participation in the Conrad Challenge is subject to these Rules and Regulations and subject to the Terms and Conditions located on the Conrad Foundation website. If you do not agree to abide by the Rules and Regulations and the Terms and Conditions, you may not participate in the Conrad Challenge or receive the benefit of any services provided by the Conrad Foundation. 5. Each team member and coach must read, understand, and abide by the Terms and Conditions and these competition Rules & Regulations. Registration of a team indicates the team’s and coach’s agreement to abide by all Rules and Regulations, including the Community Codes and Standards (detailed below).
6. The competition is open to international participants. It is the responsibility of international participants to make sure that their participation in the Conrad Challenge does not conflict with any rule or law of their country of residence.
7. Teams participating in the Challenge should be aware that the Foundation may charge fees to individual team members and teams to participate in certain aspects of the Conrad Challenge. This year, the fees to submit their content in Round One are: Investor Pitch (FREE) and Round Two: Business Plan ($499/team). The Foundation offers discounts and waivers to these fees to qualifying students and teams. In addition, teams selected to attend the Conrad Innovation Summit, and/or the Virtual Finals, may be asked to pay certain fees associated with registration, travel, and accommodations to attend.
8. Students who have competed in the past:

The Conrad Challenge reserves the right to disqualify a team at any point in the registration, submission, or judging process, if the team does not meet any of these rules, at the sole judgement and discretion of the Conrad Foundation.
Use of and Standards for Competition Submissions

This section refers to all elements submitted by the team for consideration of the Conrad Challenge. This includes, but is not limited to, the Investor Pitch, team video, photos, and Business Plan.

1. All submissions must be in English.
2. All elements submitted by the team must be entirely the work of the student team members. Team coaches may guide the students but may not create any of the submitted elements or provide excessive influence on the concept design.
3. The submission and/or presentation may not disclose any confidential third-party intellectual property or violate any existing copyright protections.
4. Submissions may not copy or use other materials without properly citing the source. Proper citation includes the standard information of a scientific citation, including authors, publication source, dates, volume, pages, or URL information.
5. The basic information (team member names, team member pictures, team product, team location or school) for any teams completing the requirements for Round 2: The Business Plan (who are named Conrad Innovators) or named as Finalists will be posted publicly on the Conrad Challenge website and shared via social media.
6. It is the responsibility of each team to determine how much information about their concept is publicly disclosed. Please refer to “A Word About Confidentiality and Patents” in this document for more guidance. All United States-based Finalist teams will be required to file a Provisional Patent application as part of their participation in the Summit or Virtual Finals. There may be representatives of press, sponsors, and other members of the public at the Virtual Finals or the Innovation Summit, so all information shared at the Summit in a group setting should be considered publicly disclosed.
7. The Conrad Foundation reserves the right to use the basic information for the teams set out in point 5 above, and any other information, photos and videos provided by the teams as part of the Conrad Challenge, to promote the Conrad Challenge competition and the Virtual Finals and Innovation Summit. Every person who participates in Summit or the Virtual Summit is deemed to have accepted and acknowledged the Image, Likeness and Voice Release set forth below.
8. The Conrad Challenge is sponsored by different companies and organizations that may be able to offer valuable benefits to the teams participating in the Conrad Challenge. The Conrad Foundation may share a team's contact information and Conrad Challenge submissions with a sponsor, in confidence, for the purpose of allowing the sponsor to contact the team regarding a potentially valuable benefit or service, or for the purpose of deciding whether to grant an award to the team. By submitting materials to the Conrad Challenge, teams give the Conrad Foundation permission to share their contact information, concept submissions, including their Business Plans and other technical submissions, with sponsors in confidence for this purpose.
9. The Conrad Foundation can use all information provided by teams as part of the Conrad Challenge for internal purposes, including improving the Challenge, consulting with professional educators, and other legitimate internal purposes.

A WORD ABOUT CONFIDENTIALITY AND PATENTS

When you conceive, design and create an innovative product as part of the Conrad Challenge competition, you are creating intellectual property that belongs to you. When you start work on your product, you should think about whether you want to try and protect your intellectual property through patents or confidentiality agreements. You may want to share your ideas with the public at large and decide not to seek any special legal protections for them. The choice is up to you. You should bear in mind, however, that venture capitalists and other investors usually consider whether the intellectual property in an innovative product has been kept confidential or claimed in a patent application, in deciding whether to invest in efforts to commercialize the product.

For this reason, the Conrad Challenge is asking all Round 2: The Business Plan judges to keep confidential any technical or business information they learn when reviewing the Business Plan submitted by the teams as part of Round 2. However, all information you present at the Conrad Challenge Innovation Summit, or the Virtual Finals is not considered confidential. These materials are intended to interest the public and potential investors in your ideas!

The Conrad Foundation encourages all United States teams (and requires all Finalist teams invited to present at Summit or the Virtual Finals) to file a provisional patent application covering their product and including any important confidential details from their product documents before submitting any materials that may include their unique ideas and inventions. You can find information regarding the process and requirements for filing a patent application at the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office’s website, www.uspto.gov. We also strongly encourage teams from countries outside the United States to file a patent application in accordance with the law of their home countries before presenting their inventions publicly.

If you have any questions about the value or procedures for filing a patent application, we encourage you to consult your own patent attorney or agent who can give you advice tailored to your product. Unfortunately, because of the number of submissions we receive, the Conrad Foundation cannot provide you any specific advice regarding whether to file a patent application.
