Information About the Speakers

Marian C. Horzinek
Dr. Horzinek is the founding editor of Veterinary Sciences Tomorrow, an electronic current awareness journal. He received his veterinary and PhD (Habil) degree (in virology) in Hannover, Germany, and was on the Veterinary Faculty of Utrecht University for many years where he was an active research virologist, served as Chair of Virology, and founded the Utrecht Institute of Veterinary Research and the Graduate School of Animal Health. He has published ~300 scientific articles, books, and monographs, served on numerous editorial and advisory boards, and been awarded numerous international science prizes and professorial honors. His areas of interest are in virus evolution, vaccinology, “debunking” of pseudoscience, and the visibility of veterinary research in the biomedical environment.

Erik von Elm
Dr. von Elm is a Senior Research Epidemiologist at the German Cochrane Center and at the Swiss Paraplegic Research institute. He studied medicine at the University of Tubingen, Germany, and in Montpelier, France. His research interests are in evidence-based medicine and scientific reporting as well as injury epidemiology. He was lead author of the STROBE initiative, seminal guidelines for reporting observational studies, and a coauthor of STREGA, which focuses on genetic association studies. He has published several systematic reviews and numerous articles and editorials on scientific writing, publication and outcome reporting bias, clinical trials, research integrity, use of language, editorial policies, abstracts, duplicate publication, and other aspects of scientific reporting and epidemiology.

Annette O’Connor
Dr. O’Connor is an Associate Professor of Epidemiology at Iowa State University where she teaches epidemiology methods and inference in the Preventive Veterinary Medicine Program. She received her veterinary degree at the University of Sydney and her DVSc at the University of Guelph, and in 2009 was admitted as a Fellow of Epidemiology in the Australian College of Veterinary Scientists. Her main area of research is in understanding how researchers can use study design and review methodologies to translate research findings into useful decision support tools. Her work has resulted in several publications on how to review primary research in veterinary science and food safety and in the REFLECT statement, a guide for authors, reviewers, and editors on how to report intervention studies.
Eva Baranyiová
Dr. Baranyiova has been Executive Editor of Acta Veterinaria Brno, one of the oldest veterinary journals in Europe, since 1971, and Editor-in-Chief since 2000. She received her veterinary degree in Brno and trained in the Dept. of Physiology. She currently teaches and does research on animal behavior and the human-animal bond at the School of Veterinary Medicine in Brno. She also teaches scientific writing. She has authored more than 40 scientific papers, is a member of several professional organizations and societies, and was the recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship. She is a founding member of the European Association of Veterinary Editors, has been an active participant in the International Association of Veterinary Editors, and has been an invited contributor to the Web of Knowledge User Panel.

Martin Tilly
Martin Tilly is a senior journal publishing manager at Wiley-Blackwell and has worked in publishing for over 15 years. His first publishing job was in the production department of a small B2B magazine publishers in London. He moved into academic publishing in 2003, joining Blackwell Publishing as a production manager. He then changed track and joined the editorial team in 2005 managing a list of food science and nutrition titles. In 2008 Martin took over the UK-based veterinary list and recently led the successful Wiley-Blackwell bid to take over the BEVA journals EVJ and EVE. Martin graduated in English Literature and Linguistics from St John's University in York.

Anne Jackson
Anne Jackson has been Scientific Editor, and now Editor in Chief, of the Australian Veterinary Journal, the peer-reviewed journal of the Australian Veterinary Association, since 2005. She qualified as a veterinary surgeon from Girton College Cambridge and obtained a PhD in medicine from Monash University in Melbourne, Australia. She has worked as a clinical and government veterinarian, animal welfare officer, researcher, university lecturer, and medical and veterinary writer and editor. She established her own medical writing company, specialising in literature reviews, guidelines and reports, and writing for the web. She is the past-President and webmaster of the Australasian Medical Writers Association.

Kathy W. Clarke
Kathy qualified as a veterinary surgeon from Cambridge and subsequently specialised and obtained her Diploma in Veterinary Anaesthesia. She was a Lecturer (then Senior Lecturer) at the Royal Veterinary College (University of London), with a variety of research interests including equine anaesthesia.
Kathy retired in 2008 and was awarded an Honorary Professor of Veterinary Anaesthesia. At the start of 2009 she became the European Editorship of Veterinary Anaesthesia and Analgesia, the official journal of the Association of Veterinary Anaesthetists and the American College of Veterinary Anaesthesia. She is past-President of the European College of Veterinary Anaesthesia and Analgesia, and the Assoc. of Veterinary Anaesthetists.

Mo Salman
Mo Salman is a Professor of Veterinary Epidemiology in the Animal Population Health Institute of the College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences at Colorado State University. He obtained his veterinary degree from the University of Baghdad and his MPVM and PhD from the University of California-Davis. He is a Diplomate of the American College of Veterinary Preventive Medicine and a fellow of the American College of Epidemiology. He has authored over 240 refereed papers in scientific journals. He is Editor-in-Chief of Preventive Veterinary Medicine and is on the board of the American Journal of Veterinary Research. He is Section Editor for the epidemiology section of Animal Health Research Review.

Martin Alder
Martin Alder has been editor of Veterinary Record, the weekly journal of the British Veterinary Association (BVA), for the past 20 years—through BSE and foot-and-mouth crises and various developments in publishing. He is also responsible for the BVA continuing education journal In Practice, and has been involved with other veterinary titles, including Research in Veterinary Science, Journal of Small Animal Practice, and Veterinary Nursing. Before joining Veterinary Record, he worked on New Scientist magazine, where he was responsible for the opinion and letters pages. He graduated from Cambridge University in Natural Sciences and is an Honorary Associate of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons.

R. E. Clutton
Dr. Clutton graduated (BVSC) from the University of Liverpool, where he trained in the Dept of Anaesthesia and was awarded the Cert VA (RCVS) and DVA. He was Assistant Professor of Vet. Anaesthesiology at the University of Virginia-Maryland, served as Head of Anaesthesia in R(D)SVS (Edinburgh) for many years, and is a Diplomate of the European College of Veterinary Anaesthesia. He was European Editor of Vet. Anaesthesia and Analgesia (1999-2005) and is a member of the Royal College of Anaesthetists, Animal Welfare Science, Ethics and Law Veterinary Assoc, and Vet. History Society. He was President and is senior-Vice Pres. of the Assoc. of Vet. Anaesthetists.
