*Continuing Professional Development
Many children and youth are exposed to traumatic events and adverse experiences that, if left unaddressed, can lead to toxic stress and other issues that affect lifelong health, wellness and development. The 2019 Trauma-Informed Pediatric Provider Course will assist health care providers and those working in or with child servicing agencies to identify children who have experienced adversity, trauma and toxic stress and will discuss their presentation and the risk factors involved. This three and one-half day course includes the recent science, evidence base and treatments of adversity, resiliency and toxic stress and is presented by experts in the field.
