

Wilder and less disciplined, saxophonist Ivo Perelman rips and rages through a collection of Brazilian folk tunes on "Children of Ibeji" (Enja), and even tosses in an interpretation of the ever-malleable "Tom's Diner." Mr. Perelman's fierce lyricism is not for the timid.