HOW Picks Start at 6:30pm Feb 18th

A HOW Project from 2011 by Bryan Richardson

Bryan Richardson has organized great classes for this year's Hands On Workshop, with lots of help from Chris Stone. You've seen the mailing; initial sign-ups will be at the February 18th General Meeting starting at 6:30. You must be a turning club member to participate, but new members are always welcome- just fill out the membership form on page 4 and bring it along with your picks. (See page 2 for a summary listing of instructors and their offerings.) The courses are taught by our most talented members and cover topics from basic turning to advanced techniques, so there is something for everyone. Classes fill up fast and early birds get first picks.

Mike Kehs Demonstrates Texturing and More

Nationally recognized turner, carver, and demonstrator, Mike Kehs let us in on a number of the techniques he uses to embellish his turnings. Mike showed us all sorts of texturing tools, both rotary and pneumatic, and most important, how to use them correctly. And in dramatic fashion, we got to see his super-powered pyrography tool, and the way he fashions the burning elements to create all sorts of interesting patterns. Andy DiPietro did a little research after the meeting and found a source for those unique wire twisting pliers ($11.99 <http://www.harborfreight.com/9-inch-safety-wire-twisting-pliers-45341.html>). At the end of the meeting, President Matt Overton encouraged members to try their hands at what they saw and hinted that a little recognition for good efforts would be part of our Show and Tell at the February Meeting. Thanks for putting on this great presentation, Mike!

Mike Kehs describes the hand tools, power equipment and methods that give his work his signature look.

Mark Gardner: CALL – AND – RESPONSE

(March 01 – May 25, 2013)

CALL – AND – RESPONSE is a form of spontaneous verbal and no-verbal interaction between speaker and listener. This exhibition of new work produced by Mark Gardner during his Fall 2012 Windgate Artist in Residence at The School of Art + Design, Purchase College, was made with this back and forth dynamic between the artist and material. Gardner brought his own ideas to the logs and the logs offered suggestion based on their size and shapes. Cuts were made and pieces removed from the log which offered ideas of new forms. Sometimes these “drops” prove as interesting as the pieces they come from.

Hans and Jakob Weissflog: Bordering on the Impossible

(March 01 – May 25, 2013)

Impossibly small, detailed and engineered. Impossibly beautiful African blackwood – integrated sap and heartwood. Two bodies of work that fit in the protected palm of your hand. Shock and awe. Instant collections.

Father Hans Weissflog and only son, Jakob Weissflog, share a shop and the mastery of their craft. Over twenty-five years, Hans has created a complex menagerie of turned, layered and pierced boxes. Many roll and delight the viewer! Jakob grew up observing and practicing, then trained under Hans and others. Now in his twenties, his architectonic works hover, suspend and complement with perfect geometry..In association with Ray Leier of del Mano – A Gallery of Fine Contemporary Craft, LLC
