Full of vim and vigor, this Taiwan based design house - Esaila was founded by designer Kenyon Yeh. It has introduced a collection of contemporary minimalist designs consisting of furniture, light fittings and other accessories.

The name Esaila derived from a Taiwanese colloquial '可以', which means 'be able to', to reflect our ideology in our designs. We believe that a good design is a synthesis of commitment and determination in the pursuit of technical and aesthetic harmony yet retain a sense of lightness and quirkiness, such as in our everyday lives.

Besides featuring Kenyon Yeh's own design, Esaila is always on the lookout for young passionate designers to form collaboration. To date we have collaborated with Kaschkasch, Knauf & Brown, Tomas Kral & Stéphane Halmaï-Voisard and Vera & Kyte from around the globe.

Esaila is a design editor with the designers' collective aim to explore ways in defining relationship between the object, the human and the space; to create a meaning and symbolic tie between the three elements.
