Heba Mostafa is Assistant Professor of Islamic Art and Architecture at the Department of History of Art, University of Toronto. She received her doctorate from Cambridge University’s Department of Architecture in 2012 and holds degrees in architecture and the history of Islamic architecture from Cairo University and the American University in Cairo. Her research explores the formation of Islamic architecture through the lens of early Islamic sectarianism and governance, addressing the mediation of political and confessional division through architecture at the intersection of politics and the sacred. With a particular focus on Jerusalem and Cairo, she focuses on Islam’s interface with late antiquity, Christianity and Judaism through commemorative architecture, pilgrimage and ritual practice.
