

Justin Connor
President, Rothchild Capital Partners

Justin Connor is an entrepreneur with extensive expertise in technology, finance, and client services. Currently, he serves as President of Rothschild Capital Partners - the family office of David Rothschild. As President, Justin works with the RothCap team to manage the firm's public and private investments, entrepreneurial endeavors, and philanthropy.

Prior to joining RCP, Justin was a Founding Partner of Domaine Wine Storage, the world's largest consumer focused wine storage business. During his time at Domaine, Justin was also an investor in and builder of consumer technology businesses: including the BottleStock application, which was successfully sold to USA Today. Prior to Domaine, Justin sold his previous company, The Noble Vine, which he founded while studying at Georgetown. Over a 7 year period, Justin built The Noble Vine into a world class team of expert consultants based in the US, Europe, South East Asia, and China. At its peak, the business managed collections totaling more than 2 million wine bottles and directed transactions valued at more than $35mm per year. Justin is a member of Young Presidents Organization, a delegate of the Clinton Global Initiative, and a graduate of the Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University. He is an active supporter of Gastromotiva, Central Scholarship Fund for Vocational Training, and St. Jude's/ALSAC.
