

The Flint Journal

Flint, Michigan

The Flint Journal Flint, Michigan New Production Facility

This 76,000 square foot production facility was built on a downtown site. The prominent end view of the presshall is a re-interpretation of the existing building, done in glass and metal. Some of the printer's marks from the existing 80-year old building were lifted and etched into the glass facade of the new structure, as well as 26 original artwork medallions representing the communities the newspaper serves.

Services Provided:

- Peer Review
- Programming
- Masterplanning
- Architecture & Engineering

