Improving Maternal-Infant Health in the Dominican Republic through Regional Training Programs

Dr. Alexandra Leader, MD, MPH, pediatric emergency medicine physician at the Children’s Hospital of the King’s Daughters in Norfolk, VA. Director of Global Health at Eastern Virginia Medical School and co-founder and co-director of the Manos de Ramon Foundation.

Dr. Wanny Roa, MD, family medicine physician at the Northcentral Regional Health Service in the Dominican Republic, and program director of Manos de Ramon’s projects for the Dominican Republic’s north region.

The Dominican Republic has one of the highest incidences of maternal and neonatal morbidity and mortality in Latin America, often a consequence of lack of resources and training. Manos de Ramon Foundation is an NGO focused on improving maternal-child care in Latin America through onsite education and training for local health care providers.
