Intermediate Summer Reading 2010

The following titles represent some of the best literature available for children at the Intermediate level. We send this list as a summer gift for your family. Please plan to read at least three to five books from this list during the course of the summer. The “M” following the titles indicates that the title is available at Multnomah County Library; all other titles are at both Arbor and the county library. If you cannot find your choice of books at your public library or local bookstore, you are welcome to browse the Arbor shelves. Simply sign books out by the check-out computer. Of course some books are difficult to find, so please be mindful of others and return Arbor books promptly.

To a summer filled with joyful experiences of many kinds,
The Arbor Staff

Hindus have two great Sanskrit epics, The Ramayana and The Mahabharata. The latter has 100,000 stanzas! For The Ramayana, you can read simple versions in the store and then buy or check out from a library an edition that seems wonderful to you. With The Mahabharata, you may want to visit an Indian store in the area, browse through their books, even comics, to find versions that are wholly accessible to you. This title is not for those who detest gore.
