THE BURLEITH

President's Message

I hope everyone is enjoying the early summer weather.

We are still very excited about the Arcadia book devoted to Burleith. In addition to co-author Ross Schipper's book talk at the Georgetown Neighborhood Library back on March 25, the BCA also recently hosted two events for friends of the neighborhood and BCA members. I would like to thank Massimo Calabresi, Margaret Emery, Edie Cecil, Nan Bell, Linda Brooks, the authors—Ross Schipper and Dwane Starlin, and especially Kay Twomey for all they have done to make these events happen. The BCA will have copies of the book to purchase at the summer picnic.

The Neighborhood Study Group worked on a survey that asked for your opinions about various aspects of neighborhood development. It was distributed in early May to all Burleith residents and property owners. The results were not finalized before this edition of the Bell went to press, so please check your email and our website in early June for the findings.

Looking forward, the annual summer picnic is coming up on Saturday, June 17 from 3:30-7:30 pm at the Green Lot (Whitehaven and 37th Street). Once again, there will be live music and BBQ. We are always looking for volunteers, so if you are interested in helping out, please email bca@burleith.org.

There was a meeting with neighbors, city officials and contractors on May 10 about the Ellington renovation. Despite falling behind, it is scheduled to be completed over the summer. Work has stepped up over recent weeks, and the burden on the community continues. Workers parking in the streets have become a massive problem—not only on 35th, 36th, and R, but now on S and T as well. Now they have a permit to work on Sundays. Our ANC rep, Ed Solomon, and others are trying to get some relief, but it has been an uphill struggle.

There is a lot of other stuff going on/starting soon. It looks like the MedStar Georgetown University Hospital renovation will begin to intensify. DC Water's green alley initiative should also heat up (pun intended). And work on the old Holiday Inn in Georgetown has commenced. I am 95% sure there will be a Trader Joe's in that space. We will have to monitor the potential traffic and parking impact. Finally, the semi-annual Burleith community clean-up will be Saturday, June 10. Details on page 7.

Finally, congratulations to all students in the neighborhood who have successfully completed another school year and especially to the class of 2017!

Eric

Pre-Picnic Burleith Walking Tour – Saturday, June 17, 1:30 pm, Hardy Middle School

Burleith tour guide and co-author of the new book, Burleith, Dwane Starlin, will lead a two-hour walking tour before the annual BCA Picnic. For the free tour, meet Dwane at the Hardy Middle School's west entrance at 35th and T Streets, NW. It will end at the Green Lot at 3:30 pm, just in time for the Picnic to begin. Questions? Email Dwane at dwanestarlin@aol.com.

We Need Your Help!

Before the fun starts, there's work to do and we'd love it if you pitched in. Here's how you can help:

BEFORE:

Raffle items: If you frequent a business or own a business and can help secure items for our raffle such as gift certificates for meals, items of clothing, books, decorative objects, or anything special—let us know.

PICNIC DAY:

Picnic set-up from 1-2:30 pm on June 17 at the Green Lot. This mainly involves setting up the tent, tables, chairs, and general picnic area. If we have at least six to eight people, in good physical shape to do this, it's fun and fairly easy work.

FRESH NEW MUSIC: Barry Gurley Trio—Washingtonian Magazine named Gurley “Best Pianist-Vocalist” in DC. From DC's Blues Alley to New York City's The Blue Note to The Monterey Jazz Festival and Le Bilboquet in Paris, France, Gurley has an eclectic style and repertoire that will seduce our ears.

TOP DOG CONTEST: A favorite attraction where Burleith's smartest and most beautiful pooches vie for Best in Show.

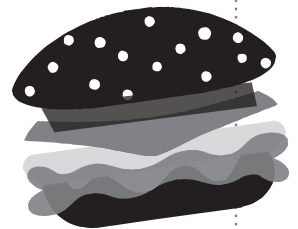

KID STUFF: Petting zoo, face painting, fire truck, police cars, and GERMS ambulance provide endless fun.

EAT + DRINK: Feast on Rocklands (DC's best BBQ!) and other tasty treats. Gulp and stay refreshed with beverages from Town Hall.

The Picnic is sponsored by the Burleith Citizens Association with generous support from Georgetown University, Town Hall, Lenore Rubino/REALTOR, Rocklands Barbeque and Grilling Company, Dry Bar, Hop, Cask & Barrel, Unleashed by Petco, Unum, Sprinkles, Glover Park-Burleith Farmers Market and Community Foodworks, Yates Field House, Palisades Veterinary Clinic, Ann Kenkel Interiors, and the Burleith Community Fund. We encourage you to patronize our supporters as a way of saying thanks.

1. Pick-up tables and chairs from Jelleff and deliver to the picnic site. If you have a large SUV, it'll help.
2. Food and beverage set-up and refilling items as they are needed throughout the picnic from 3:30-7:30 pm.
3. Picnic clean-up from 7:30-8:30 pm (break-down tent, tables, chairs, collect trash, etc.).

To volunteer to help with any of the above or to find out how you can help, email Kay at burleithevents@gmail.com. Thank you in advance!

FOCUS ON MICHAEL FARQUHAR

By Forrest Bachner

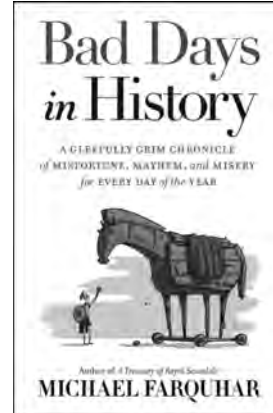

Best-selling author Michael Farquhar is a man with a message: first, there is no reason that history can't be fun; and second, even when it's fun, history informs everything. With titles like A Treasury of Great American Scandals: Tantalizing True Tales of Historic Misbehavior by the Founding Fathers and Others Who Let Freedom Swing, college courses featuring his work, and sales of his seven books passing the 600,000 mark, it's obvious he's getting that message out.

A former writer and editor for The Washington Post, Catholic University grad, and Burleith native and current resident, Michael writes collections of some of history's most interesting moments and characters, books such as A Treasury of Foolishly Forgotten Americans: Pirates, Skinflints, Patriots, and Other Colorful Characters Stuck in the Footnotes of History and A Treasury of Royal Scandals: The Shocking True Stories of History's Wickedest, Weirdest, Most Wanton Kings, Queens, Tsars, Popes and Emperors. (See Michael Farquhar in Amazon for a complete list and description of books.) Recently, we sat on Michael's front porch overlooking his exquisite front yard and talked about why history is so important to him, how he got started at The Post, his career as a writer, and some of his favorite moments and people from his books—for example, the moment, almost literally, when NBC cut away from the 1968 Super Bowl to a made-for-TV movie of Heidi 65 seconds before the end of the game and before the Raiders scored two touchdowns in nine seconds to beat the Jets. Or when the owner of the White Star Line was savagely attacked after surviving the sinking of the Titanic. Why? Because he survived the sinking of the Titanic. Both of these memorable moments are from Farquhar's Bad Days in History. Please see Burleith.org for the full interview.

All of your work is about history. Why? History is human nature writ large. People being people, just on a grander scale than most of us, good and bad, massively heroic or uncompromisingly stupid, and how entertaining that is!

How do you see your approach to history? I see myself not as a historian but as a reporter of history... history for people who don't know history. The history behind history that no one taught you in high school. I try to create mini-portraits synthesizing human nature and history, or find anecdotes that can illuminate a time, a place, or the real person without people having to read pages and pages. For example, biographies revere Gandhi. But do people know he was a (not a very good) father? Or how about the SS officer caught in a tutu? As [the historian] David McCullough said, "There's nothing wrong with writing history that people want to read." And sometimes, I just want to entertain. For example, for one Mother's Day I wrote an article about the Meanest Mothers in History. I love to laugh and I love funny people.

You started at The Post a couple of years out of college with no journalism degree. How did you do that? And how did you get into your history niche? I started out as a peon in 1990, an entry-level job taking care of the mail, replenishing toner, that sort of thing. But I had great fortune in two ways: first, I was working in the Style Department where you didn't have to have a hard news background; and second, it was around the time of Queen Elizabeth coming to the US to visit, and Charles and Di were breaking up, Fergie and Andrew, etc. So I wrote a rough article titled "Lifestyles of the Rich and Unbelievably Naughty; When it Comes to Misbehaving, the Windsors Can't Hold a Scandal to Their Forebears" and gave it to Mary Hadar, the editor of the Style section, who liked it. She sent it on to Gene Weingarten who loved the humor, and it ended up on the front page of the Sunday Style Section. Then because Gene Weingarten loved the idea of inserting history into current events, a niche was born.

Any advice for aspiring writers? If you believe you're a writer, then follow that. Be open to criticism but not so open that you stop believing in yourself. And while I believe writing is an innate skill, it can be refined and developed. So my advice? Write. Regarding careers, take a job in any area you're interested in. Any job. So many people write for a small newspaper hoping maybe one day to work for The New York Times or The Post. I had no concept of a path to being a writer for The Post. I just got there by doing.

Let's return to Burleith, as this is the Burleith Bell. Do you know any great deceptions or scandals from Burleith? Besides Aldrich Ames, I only know the scandals from my family. One great, great uncle who was a DC cop shot his estranged wife and the owners of the boarding house where she was staying. The story made the entire front page of The Post in 1918 but I knew nothing about it until I found it while researching a book. When I asked my father about the murders he said, "I think I heard something along those lines." Another uncle, also a DC policeman, was bitten by a dog in Georgetown and died. But it was not the wounds from the dog bite that killed him, it was the rabies vaccine.

You lived in Burleith until you were eight and then moved back to Burleith in 1993. What do you remember about growing up here? I loved the farm that was in Hillandale, but really I was the typical kid in the alley. The woods were my playground.

BURLEITH BOOK: CELEBRATIONS & HIGHLIGHTS

by Ross Schipper

Burleith, a new book in the Images of America series by Arcadia Publishing, co-authored by me and Dwane Starlin, is a pictorial history of our neighborhood. Topics from chapters one and two, Origins of Burleith and Early Burleith Development, served as the basis of a talk I gave on March 25 to a packed audience in the Peabody Room of the Georgetown Library. This talk, titled Burleith: From Scotland to Shannon & Luchs, served as the first introduction of the new book. Mark Lieberman's article summarizing the talk appeared in the April 19 Georgetown Current (<http://currentnewspapers.com/new-book-in-neighborhood-series-spotlights-burleith/>).

One of Burleith's most famous residents was the 1940s national radio star, Nancy Ordway, who lived at 1710 35th Street and is featured in chapter 2. The current residents of the "Ordway House," Margaret Emery and Massimo Calabresi, hosted a private reception observing the launch of the book on April 29.

A third event, a reception open to all BCA members, celebrated the book as well as the contributors who provided most of its over 180 photographic images. It was held on May 20 at the residence of Edie Cecil and Richard Parker, one of the Cooley Brothers' homes featured in Chapter 4 of the book.

Chapter 3 covers the Shannon & Luchs development. The majority of Burleith's homes were built in the 1920s as part of this development. Designed by W. Waverly Taylor Jr and architect Arthur B. Heaton in an adaptation of Georgian architecture, the Shannon & Luchs homes received national recognition and had a strong influence on contemporary architecture at the time.

Chapter 4 describes the completion of Burleith's development. Perhaps the most significant construction here was that of the Cooley Brothers, who built over sixty homes in several phases between 1926 and 1931. The last of these were the impressive half-timbered homes in an adaptation of Elizabethan English architecture that grace the north side of the 3800 block of T Street and are shown in the accompanying contemporary photo.

The final three chapters cover the education of Burleith's children, the Western High School Cadets, and Burleith's fire and police call boxes. For the most part, children in the early years of Burleith were educated in three schools: Fillmore Elementary School, Gordon Junior High School, and Western High School.

Congratulations to the Cleanest Block Award Winners!

The Georgetown Community Partnership announced the winners of season two of the Clean Block Competition. It's an effort to keep our neighborhoods clean, healthy and sustainable. The Burleith Spring Season Winning blocks are divided into Gold and Silver. Gold winners are the block and alley encompassing the 3500 Block of R (Odd), 3500 Block of S (Even), 1700 Block of 35th (Even) and 1700 Block of 36th (Odd). Silver winners are the block and alley encompassing the 1900 Block of 35th (Even), 1900 Block of 36th (Odd), 3500 Block of T (Odd) and 3500 Block of Whitehaven (Even). Congratulations to the winners!

All residents of the winning blocks this past year were invited to participate in a raffle to win a pair of tickets to a Washington Nationals game this season, courtesy of Mayor Muriel Bowser's office. Let's all work to keep our blocks and alleys clean and healthy.

Save the Date: BCA's Neighborhood Cleanup, Saturday, June 10

Please join other like-minded neighbors on Saturday, June 10 from 9-11 am for the annual cleanup to beautify our Burleith community. As with past cleanup events, we'll meet at the 38th Street entrance of Ellington Field at 9 am, fuel up on coffee and breakfast snacks, and then fan out into the neighborhood for the next two hours. You can also help by doing some weeding at Ellington Field. GU will be collecting trash and items that require bulk pick-up. We encourage residents to focus first on their own blocks/alleys and place bagged and bulk trash conspicuously in alleys where GU trucks can collect those items during the cleanup event. We count on support from our regulars to make this event a success. New faces are always welcome, so please bring your neighbors! If you have questions, please feel free to email or call Janice Sims at simsjanice2@gmail.com or 333-6435.
