STAR Review

Queen Mary 2 entered service in January 2004. Built in France and more than twice the size of Queen Elizabeth 2, Queen Mary 2 was for a time the longest passenger ship ever built, measuring 1,132 ft. Weighing 528 tons, the Queen Mary 2 cruises at a speed of 26 knots/hr.

More outdoor space was added in the 2016 retrofit, making the Queen Mary 2 a better warm-weather ship for walking, swimming and various sports. High-tech features and splashy amenities were added, as well as dual-voltage outlets to make travelers' lives easier. Wi-Fi is available but at a cost.

Passengers are charged per-diem tips per their restaurant allocation, higher for the grills than for the Britannia Restaurant. No other tipping is expected. Charges for activities and purchases are billed to passengers' staterooms.

Several views forward can be found from the library and bookstore, the Commodore Club piano bar, the card room, and from an open observation deck. Most public rooms are located on the lowest passenger decks, and large picture windows connect passengers with the sea. The Queen Mary 2 offers a variety of onboard activities such as fitness classes, card games, dance lessons, lectures and watercolor instruction, and the planetarium (in the Illuminations Theatre) is a big draw. Passengers can also try their luck with roulette or slot machines at the Empire Casino. Luxury shops are located just off the Grand Lobby.

Music plays a big role in activities, and performances are excellent. The Royal Cunard Singers & Dancers hold forth in the plush Royal Court Theatre with music and dance. The shows are ambitious, lushly costumed and of high caliber.

Stage entertainment takes place in the Royal Court. The Radio City-style Illuminations Theatre hosts a top lecture program offered by experts in various fields. The Canyon Ranch Spa is the largest ever mounted in a ship, with a staff of 50 to perform a vast array of services; there is also a women's hair salon. Movies are shown on the highest deck under the stars on warm nights. Deck space includes the longest promenade deck at sea, mostly sheltered under the lifeboats and sporting more than 300 wooden deck chairs.
Five swimming pools, some with adjoining whirlpool tubs, are available in the open and under a Magrodome. Sports facilities include a paddle tennis court, golf driving range, basketball practice enclosure and shuffleboard.

The cabins are matched with one of three assigned dining venues. Most categories, B1 to D6, are allocated to the soaring Britannia Restaurant, a spectacular space with three tiers. It operates mostly on a reserved-seat, two-sitting basis, with the best tables on the lower level under the dome or on the first tier. Breakfast and lunch are open sitting. Food is plentiful, tasty and imaginatively realized.

Todd English, the Boston restaurateur, established the ship's signature restaurant, an attractively designed space aft on Deck 8. It offers a change from the main restaurants and gets mixed reviews. A service charge applies, and reservations are required.

For informal breakfasts and lunches, the King's Court is a sprawling buffet open around the clock. In the evening, its four sections are decorated according to theme. There's an Asian restaurant called Lotus, which offers a sampler menu; The Carvery is for British-style prime ribs, chicken and fish; La Piazza has an Italian menu; and the Chef's Galley provides cooking demonstrations, after which guests enjoy the results. All require reservations, but only the Chef's Galley carries a charge. The outdoor Boardwalk Cafe on Deck 12 has a small buffet setup and limited menu. A limited breakfast and lunch menu is also available at Sir Samuel's.

Spaciousness and elegance are apparent along the central public room corridors, in the elevator foyers and in many of the lounges. The ship's vast size is most evident in the seemingly endless, arrow-straight, and narrow cabin corridors. Four efficient banks of elevators swiftly carry passengers from deck to deck. Aft locations are nearer the restaurants and major public rooms. There are also laundry rooms available on nearly every passenger deck.

The standard inside and outside cabins are moderate in size; three-quarters of them are balcony cabins spread over eight decks. To safeguard against wave damage during storms, the three lowest balconied decks are recessed into the steel hull. Some prefer these because the thick partitions make them private, but the cabin interiors get less natural light. For those with larger budgets, Grand Suites include duplex apartments overlooking the stern and others stretching across the bow of the ship.

Cabin are fitted with desks, closet and drawer space, and safes for personal items. Interactive TVs provide an endless array of services, including weather forecasts and a positioning report.

Day 6 — Boston, Massachusetts
Genteel streets lined with elegant brick town houses, acres of public greens and gardens, more colleges than are found in many states, and a church on almost every corner: Boston serves up slices of history and culture at every turn. Savvy spin-doctors of centuries past have made the town that cradled independence our nation's history and myth capital. More than ever, America’s mother city serves up the bold and new with the old and true -- reflecting skyscrapers mirror Colonial steeples, and expressways zip around buildings whose hand-etched look recalls the scrimshaw era. Few places in America display their history so lovingly. (B, L, D)

Day 10 — Quebec City, Canada
Quebec City sits on the Saint Lawrence River in Canada’s mostly French-speaking Québec province.
