LEARN HOW TO EARN MORE

NOT ALL POINTS ARE THE SAME

Each airline's frequent flyer program has different benefits and sweet-spots and sometimes it can be cheaper to use points from a different program, whilst still flying with your favoured airline. One example, Sydney to Hong Kong, business class return is only 80,000 Cathay Pacific points vs 120,000 Qantas points yet you can still fly on a Qantas plane. These differences occur across all programs and destinations, our experts help you to take advantage of them for the best value and experience.

Our knowledge of all the different points programs, multipliers and airlines can help you collect more of the right points to suit your travel needs, and fly for less.

FLY CHEAPER BY PAYING YOUR BILLS

We are experts at helping companies accumulate credit card and frequent flyer points without spending a dollar more. How? We simply leverage all their existing expenses to earn points.

Every month, companies pay expenses, such as suppliers, stock, rent, services, travel, training, marketing and BAS to the ATO, unaware they could be getting rewarded for paying their bills.

Often they are put off by credit card surcharges, without realising the value of the points they accumulate, will far outweigh the costs, when they redeem their points to make massive savings on business class travel.

FLY BUSINESS CLASS CHEAPER – HOW DOES IT WORK?

“Do more with less” and “Buy low and sell high” are common business phrases.

Frequent flyer programs have hidden value, but they are complex, with so many rules that makes them hard to understand. At the core, the value comes from collecting points cheaply, and redeeming them for expensive business class flights.

In this example, flying business class round-trip, from Sydney to Europe, using points can save over $5570.

Airline Points Needed to fly Business class - Sydney to Europe round-trip (from)	Merchant fee (cost to collect points)	Normal ticket cost (Value of using points)	Savings
Qantas (256,000)	$2560	$8350+	$5790
Virgin (278,000)	$2780	$8350+	$5570
Singapore (210,000)	$2100	$8350+	$6250
Many More...

*Example: $1 = 1 point at 1% surcharge. Different suppliers charge different fees based on negotiation. A lower surcharge and/or a credit card earning more points will lead to a lower cost and higher savings.

USE THE RIGHT CARD FOR YOUR BUSINESS

The iFLYflat Points Advisory Audit reviews your business' running costs to match the right cards to earn more points. We will advise exactly which card/s to use and the best ways to use the points for your travel needs. Paired with our Points Flight Concierge service, you can effortlessly save money while travelling the world in business class.

HOW MUCH DOES THE POINTS ADVISORY AUDIT COST?

Example: The popular SAVER PLAN (for companies spending between $25,000 and $250,000/month) is charged at $2499 per audit.

The iFLYflat guarantee means our advice will ALWAYS result in a NET BENEFIT to you.

Your investment is easily recovered after just one flight to Europe, on the extra points we helped you earn, and you will continue to save on every flight.

Be rewarded for paying your bills and leverage your overheads to fly business class for less? Let's discuss the points you have been missing out on.
