Principal for a Day

Next Tuesday, September 8, Glenroy College will be hosting Ben Rogers as part of the Principal For a Day program. Ben is the Executive Officer of the Inner North Community Foundation. He will be shadowing Rod Ebbage, Acting Principal at Glenroy College from 8:45 – 1:30pm. The purpose of the program is to provide Ben with some knowledge on how young people work at school and we can, hopefully, create a valuable community link for our school. During period 2, Ben will visit some classes.

Around 150 business and community leaders will step up for schools and become Principal for a Day on Tuesday September the 8th.

Business and community leaders participating in Principal for a Day shadow school principals and take part in many aspects of a common school day, including in-depth management discussions with the principal, taking classes with students, talking with parents and staff, or even doing canteen or yard duty.

Principal for a Day gives business and community leaders a first-hand, behind-the-scenes experience of the strengths and challenges facing Victoria's government schools, and provides school principals with an opportunity to compare management and leadership perspectives. The program helps schools develop ongoing partnerships and networks with businesses and the wider community.
