Helping Globally Mobile Families Thrive with Special Education and Therapeutic Solutions

An overseas post can be the opportunity of a lifetime. The chance to work in a foreign country, experience a different culture and participate in the global economy is exciting.

For families with children who have special educational needs (SEN) though, the excitement can quickly turn into anxiety and doubt as navigating unfamiliar learning environments can be fraught with difficulty. All too often, conversations quickly shift from exploring and choosing places to live, eat and play to tackling tough questions. How will the family cope with one parent living thousands of miles away? What will happen when the employer learns that the offer can't be accepted as SEN support is limited in international settings? For a family already overseas, what happens when they learn that the support their child needs isn't available? There is a way for families to have both – a challenging career and excellent educational and therapeutic solutions.

Working with families, employers and schools, International Diagnostic Solutions (IDS) offers technology-enabled delivery of multidisciplinary therapeutic and special educational services so that children can thrive no matter where their parents work.

Qualified Staff of Caring Professionals

Our multidisciplinary professionals provide the expertise and resources your child needs to learn and grow in international settings. This means from the development of a special educational needs plan to direct therapy with the child and coaching for parents and local teachers, the IDS clinical team is there to define a path, monitor and measure progress and ensure success.

Our staff includes:

- Diagnostic and Assessment Experts
- Psychologists and Social Workers
- Board Certified Behavior Analysts
- Speech Language Pathologists
- Occupational and Physical Therapists
- Special Educators
- Gifted and Talented Specialists
- Content experts, e.g. Sensory & Auditory Processing, Executive Functioning and more

We begin by talking and listening to you

Your insight into your child's needs combined with a thorough record review, informs an individual assessment plan that identifies your child's unique learning profile. Building on that study, we tailor a support program that aligns with your child's abilities and establishes benchmarks for progress. We then work with your child directly, monitoring and measuring improvements and modifying as needed.

We engage in school settings, at home or a combination of the two environments.

We collaborate with your company, relocation specialists and schools, smoothing the transition for your child and creating a solid foundation for their success in your new home. Our services are often funded by employers and health insurance companies.

“THE IDS STAFF IS PHENOMENAL! THEY HAVE BEEN A GREAT SOURCE OF INFORMATION, REASSURANCE, AND COMFORT, WHICH WE HAVE APPRECIATED. WE ARE GREAT FANS OF IDS – THEY HAVE BEEN A GIFT.”

When Children Succeed, Everyone Gains

IDS is committed to ensuring that overseas assignments are a success for all stakeholders: parents, children, employers and schools. That’s why we work with employers and international schools as part of our mission.

For employers, the investment in setting an employee up in a foreign office – training, relocation services, etc. can quickly add up – making broken assignments a costly proposition. With IDS, employers cement loyalty, improve productivity and lower risk by giving employees peace of mind, that, no matter where their job may take them, their child can access critical educational services.

For international schools, models for inclusion are emerging, which means resources – teachers and clinicians, time and funding – are constrained. IDS partners with schools to provide welcome support for administrators, teachers and aides including access to our experts for consultation and guidance, professional development, training for aides and much more.

IDS services are often funded by employers and health insurance companies.
