

Call for Applications:
North Korea Research Division with the Canadian Centre for R2P

The North Korea & R2P Research Project

This project will aim to address key research gaps surrounding ways to effectively implement the Responsibility to Protect (R2P) principle in North Korea and the contribution that Canada can make to these efforts. The 2014 report by the United Nations Commission of Inquiry on human rights in North Korea described in detail the crimes against humanity that the North Korean government has been and is continuing to commit. However, it is important to examine how the international community can promote greater respect for human rights in North Korea, and the role Canada can play in this.

The report will focus on the following subjects:

- a. Overview of international policies toward North Korea;
- b. Historical and current Canadian policies toward and engagement with North Korea, including a highlight on North Korean defectors in Canada; and,
- c. Future policy directions and efforts toward North Korea.

The research direction may change during the spring as issues in North Korea are constantly evolving.

About the Canadian Centre for the Responsibility to Protect

The Canadian Centre for the Responsibility to Protect (CCR2P) is primarily a research organization, dedicated to the advancement of the Responsibility to Protect (R2P) principle as a functioning norm in international relations. We have research branches across different universities in Canada, and divisions within the University of Toronto. Our analysts come from many diverse backgrounds and reflect a vibrant hub of intellectual engagement on R2P. We thank you in advance for your interest.

Application Instructions

Preferred candidates will be recent graduates, graduate students, or senior undergraduate students with significant research experience. Knowledge of Korean is an asset.

Interested candidates should submit all of the following files by midnight, Monday, January 30, 2017 to research@ccr2p.org with [North Korea Division- Your name] in the subject line. Please save your files with your full name included in the title and combine all files into one PDF if possible.

- statement of interest which clearly identifies your interest in R2P, the CCR2P and the position you are applying for. Please be specific in your skill sets and past extra-curricular or employment experiences.
- a full C.V.