30494: The instructor has enormous knowledge and experience in his field. Every week he would prove why he is the teacher in the room and we the student. Fantastic person as well.

242650: ok

234304: Phil was easily the best instructor I have ever had. I was 100% engaged in every class and left each class pondering what we learned and talked about in class for hours afterwards and on occasion, for days afterwards. While the topics were interesting, I attribute my high level of engagement in the class to Phil's presentation and how he taught the material. Every week I would prove why he is the teacher in the room and we the student. Fantastic person as well.

239702: Super engaging course, challenging, but rewarding. I hesitate to say this, but grades seemed too generous, making them seem irrelevant, which may be the point. In any case, it did not alter my efforts so it is just a different approach I am not used to.

233308: Phil is an excellent instructor. He is definitely someone who brings his A game to every class. He is incredibly knowledgeable and able to talk at length about the course material. He invites class participation and encourages people to think critically and to challenge ideas. The methods of evaluation are interesting and fair. If I have one regret it is that so much of our mark is devoted to group work. I think that if even one of the last two assignments were individual it would be better. I don't lose my mind over my grades, but this university is set up to be a competitive environment so I need to care if the last half of my year drops my grade by 10-20%, you know? So that's my only even partly negative thing.

233557: Excellent instructor. I gained countless insights and new ways of both approaching & evaluating complex situations. I truly enjoyed this course.

236685: The course was hard for me, as I did not learn about sustainability earlier than this course. But personally, I really enjoyed learning about sustainability and social aspects and reading the Sads book.

https://evaluation.usask.ca/evaluation/viewSurveyResults.jsp?id=18401 was also awesome experience for me. But sometimes I thought I lack the experience of being open and talking about social things, as I am not used to it. The assignment of writing 4000 words report could have been removed (just a thought). Dr. Loring is awesome at what he teaches. But I think he was very experienced and critical thinker when he lectures in class. Sometimes it was hard to grasp the exact meaning of what he said (as coming from different study background). And also he was very fast while providing lecture. I also liked that he was open to give feedback prior to submission of assignment.

226282: This class was very interesting, we had such a diverse group of people it was wonderful to hear about other people's perspectives and experiences. The jigsaw readings were a great way to get to know our classmates better and learn a quick overview of a variety of writings and concepts. -Megan 243657: Overall, I found the course interesting and important being student of Environment and Sustainability. However it was less diverse in terms of environmental issues covered in the class. The instructor mainly focused on his research area providing examples basically from this research theme. I would like to mention that if more areas of global environmental issues, current scenario have been discussed in class, my experience would have been much better.

243706: Phil is a good man in general and academically.
