

CITY WELCOMES SCULPTOR CHARLES HADCOCK

Spend a lot of time in Canary Wharf and you may be familiar with his permanent work there, but from last month until August, City folk can behold Charles Hadcock's monumental creations closer to home. Running until 28 August at 60 Threadneedle Street, Charles Hadcock: Elements is an exhibition of large-scale, newly-created bronze sculptures. Visitors can get up close and personal with the dynamic interplay between weight and weightlessness, form and space, that typifies this artist's work.

❖ Charles Hadcock: Elements until 28 August 2014

60 Threadneedle Street, EC2R

THE CITY

MAGAZINE

MARQUES OF DISTINCTION

Thoroughbred watch brands that won't break the bank

Interview: SUPERSONIC MAN

FROM SPACECRAFT
TO SPORTS CAR, WHAT
FELIX BAUMGARTNER
DID NEXT

UNLOCKING LIQUIDITY:

The holy grail of any entrepreneur

SOCIAL INVESTMENT:

Making money by doing good

THE NEW DIGITAL GIANTS:

Would you buy shares in Twitter?

