PUBLICATIONS + HONORS

Fulbright U.S. Scholar 2015-2015 (teaching/research on human rights + crisis of credible civilian leadership post-Arab Spring)

“Afghanistan: Death Penalty At The Crossroads,” in Capital Punishment: New Perspectives, 1st ed. (2013) (Farnham: Ashgate) (co-author), available here: <http://bit.ly/2vuw2bW>. “A close second [best chapter] is the groundbreaking chapter on Afghanistan by Cody and Day, which, as Hodgkinson asserts, is the first analysis in the English language on judicial capital punishment in modern Afghanistan. The chapter provides a compelling discussion of the death penalty in both law and practice, emphasizing the competing political pressures on President Hamid Karzai regarding executions. The chapter is timely, relevant, and original, encompassing both the doctrinal and the empirical.” (academic review, Andrew Novak, George Mason University).

New York City System Map, MacArthur Safety + Justice Challenge (September 2015). Detailed, interactive presentation of qualitative and quantitative data and analysis on criminal justice, criminogenic effects of jail or prison, and impact of prosecution and incarceration policies in New York City as part of planning process to target mass incarceration and racial disparity (<http://bit.ly/2fjPTHH>).

Legal Aid Assessment and Recommendations for Afghanistan

(<http://asiafoundation.org/publication/legal-aid-assessment-roadmap-afghanistan/>, co-authored). Unprecedented + comprehensive independent assessment of criminal legal aid in Afghanistan sponsored by the Ministry of Justice, Asia Foundation, + World Bank. Analysis includes detailed survey of over 400 justice professionals, analysis, and recommendations for criminal legal aid in Afghanistan. Specific focus on gender, corruption, and effective strategies for legal aid as resources shrink.

“Leadership Through the Lens of Human Rights: Effects of Supply and Demand”(forthcoming 2017). Independent research and analysis conducted as a Fulbright Scholar on intersections of leadership and identity in transitional spaces.

“Benefits of Family-Focused, Strength-Based Methods: Women Under Community Justice Supervision and their Families,” COMMUNITY Corrections Report, November/December 2004.
