

Proper care for an intact (not circumcised) child:

Wipe gently from base to tip or rinse with warm, clean water - no soap.

Never push a child's foreskin back to "clean" under it for any reason, not even "a little."
This is called forced retraction.

The foreskin is naturally fused to the head of the penis, sometimes through puberty.

The only person who should EVER retract a child's foreskin is THE CHILD.

Forced retraction can be painful and can cause bleeding, infection, and other complications.

More information available at
YourWholeBaby.org/For-Healthcare-Providers

