
WE'RE LOOKING FOR A

MEDICAL WRITER

Position Location: Mona Vale, Sydney	Employment Details: Full Time, Ongoing
--------------------------------------	--

IS THIS YOU?

We're looking for someone who meets the below:

- You know your stuff when it comes to medicine! You've trained as a medical doctor and have experience in a whole range of topics (or could at least research and totally understand and interpret all that complicated info).
- You get a real buzz from turning complicated medical information into something patients just 'get'. You're the one your friends turn to when their doctor says something weird and incomprehensible and you know how to simplify it!
- You're a content creator. You know how to structure a sentence, make things relatable, and make a story flow (and bonus, you've already got 1 year of experience working as a copy writer!)
- You have outstanding self-management skills. You're renowned for your flexibility and resilience in a fast-paced environment.
- You're a people person. You can jump on the phone and talk to leading physicians, or talk to a patient about our work and their illness. You can make people want to be involved.
- You're a details person. You can spot a grammatical mistake or something a little bit 'off' in an instant. You care about making even the smallest tweaks to ensure excellence is achieved in everything.
- You're not afraid of social media! You're comfortable talking to our fans, provide guidance and create content for social media. You can provide information in different formats.
- You're a team player; a collaborative and team-oriented environment is where you work best and you constantly build up those around you.
