The Pennsylvania Council of SARA wishes to acknowledge our 2013 Event Sponsors. Their contributions & participation have been integral to the success of this event. We appreciate all of your efforts and your continued support and dedication to the PA Council.
We are excited to be hosting the 10th Annual Design Awards of the Pennsylvania Council of the Society of American Registered Architects.

We are all familiar with the mundane process and results of creating space for utilitarian purposes. In days of late, it seems that we have many more of these types of projects in our offices. Although those projects are a requirement of our profession, tonight we celebrate a refreshing break from pure pragmatism and recognize those Architects and their Clients who have created spaces embodied with careful thought, consideration and sensitivity. As result of their hard work, these projects are environments that transcend mere utility and decoration, and became spaces with meaning that elevate and inspire their occupants. I would personally like to congratulate all of our applicants for all of the projects submitted have achieved this. I would especially like to congratulate our award winners for their solutions are so elegant and refined that they require distinguished recognition as an advancement of our profession.

I would like to thank the jurors; John J. Di Benedetto, Helen H. Joo, and Richard A. Beck for their time, careful consideration and thoughtful insight of the projects submitted to discover this years award winners.

I would also like to thank the PDA Committees and enlisted help of past and present for their very hard work of requesting and processing the entries, establishing and hosting the jury, notifying the award recipients, coordinating the awards event, establishing the event sponsors and finally preparing and presenting the program book, the award presentation and the awards themselves.

I would finally like to thank our event sponsors, Susan Metka of DalTile, Brian McCoy of Super Enterprises / Marvin Windows, Julie Rosenberger of Shaw Contract Group, Randy Matlack of Hafele, Katie Connor of Tague Lumber & Sarah Dennie of Lighting Solutions. We appreciate their continued financial support of this program and our council, but we especially value their invariable assistance as trusted resources of ideas, information and solutions for our Architectural practices.

Enjoy the festivities!

Serving as this year’s jury chairman, John J. Di Benedetto rebuilt the Pennsylvania Council of SARA in 2002 and helped to lead it back to the viable institution it is today. He served as its President for the first four years of its rebirth and continues today as a Director and the current Secretary/Treasurer.

Educated at both Spring Garden College and Drexel University, he holds registrations in nine states and heads the firm he founded in 1979. John J. Di Benedetto Associates is responsible for an extended body of commercial, institutional and residential work primarily along the East Coast as well as extending throughout the South and to California.

John is also a Director of the National Board of SARA and was inducted into the College of Fellows in 2003. He is a recipient of numerous citations. Among them is the 2003, 2010 & 2012 Distinguished Presidential Citation for outstanding service to SARA, the 2004 Jean P. Boulanger Service Award, and the 2005 Gregson Founder’s award for advancements to the Society. In 2012, Mr. Di Benedetto was awarded the society’s highest honor, the Gold Medal.

Ms. Joo, Senior Associate and Interiors Studio Leader, has more than 15 years of experience in all project phases of interior design. Helen’s extensive design skills in programming, space planning, construction documentation and furniture / finish selection experience are unique across a broad range of clients and project scopes. In addition to her thorough knowledge of building codes, standards, and ADA requirements, she is also experienced in the supervision of team members, interfacing with other disciplines and consultants, manufacturers and contractors for successful and efficient project completion.

EDUCATION
Art Institute of Philadelphia, Associate in Interior Design
Temple University, Fine Arts
Sung Kyun Kwan University, Seoul, Korea

AWARDS
Best of Health Care Design, IIDA Design Competition, The Reading Hospital and Medical Center, Contract Magazine Healthcare Environment Awards Competition 2006, Honorable Mention, Ambulatory Care Facilities, The Reading Hospital and Medical Center

Richard Beck has over twenty years of experience as a lead design architect on healthcare, higher education and corporate projects. Currently under construction, his design with Francis Cauffman for Fulton Bank’s new headquarters in Lancaster won an AIA Delaware Merit Award.

A frequent guest design critic at Philadelphia area universities, he is a member of the Interior Design Advisory Board for Philadelphia University.

Graduate of the University of Cincinnati, summa cum laude.
WHAT IS SARA?

SARA is the only professional architectural society that grants equal representation to all architects in governing affairs of their profession. The principles of democracy are the principles of this organization. Every member is entitled to a vote, and each vote is of the same value.

Every member’s value in the sight of the organization is the same as that of every other member. The only superiority achieved by any member is the esteem earned by him in his work for and devotion to the Society in its effort to advance the architectural profession.

SARA officers are elective. All work is voluntary. Originally chosen for their willingness to help the profession, officers are named by vote of the members as the Society grows. Each member should be as proud to serve his fellow architects as the officers are to work for him. There is no obligation or liability beyond a willingness to help. The organization is non-profit. No member or officer profits from it.

It seeks to unite all architects by common consent to the end that the profession may achieve greater recognition and prestige. It also works to advance the welfare of the general public.

SARA acts as a center of exchange for all architects and professionals: receiving information from individuals, combining, analyzing and distributing this information to all interested professionals.

It seeks to promote the welfare of professionals in small communities as well as those in larger cities, working on the theory that all architects need all other architects.

No profession can build beyond the abilities of its practitioners. SARA speaks unselfishly for the good of thousands of registered architects and against none. It is being heard all over the nation as every state adds representation.

THE MISSION OF SARA

- TO UNITE all architects
- TO GIVE every architect a voice in his profession
- TO RAISE standards of architectural practice
- TO DEVELOP a strong profession
- TO HELP strong architects help others
- TO PREVENT damage from architects to architects
- TO FIGHT attacks outside the profession
- TO SHARE more equally the available contracts between architects
- TO PROVIDE representation in Washington, DC for all architects

(PARAPHRASED & REPRINTED FROM 1958 BY WILFRED GREGSON)
SARA HISTORY

The Society of American Registered Architects was founded November 9, 1956 in Atlanta, Georgia by architect, Wilfred J. Gregson. He believed that membership in a professional organization for architects should be open to anyone who possesses a license to practice architecture, regardless of his/her role in the design profession and building industry. With that belief and a strong commitment to the future of the profession, Mr. Gregson formed The Society and set forth its Credo, "Architect Helping Architect".

It was no easy task to convince architects from across the country to join a fledgling group, but he persevered for three years and on September 25-26, 1959, the group held its first convention at the Hotel Muehlebach, in Kansas City, Missouri. At that gathering, he reported to those assembled:

- "You are the ones who have made the first great step toward a unified profession of architects. You are a living report that will go to every part of these fifty United States."
- "We have succeeded in proving that there is a great need for the Society of American Registered Architects; that there are ways such a society can be of value to each architect, his client, his town, state and nation...We cannot cure all the ills at once but we have started and can see possibilities of great expensess..."
- "Architects must be represented before Congress"
- "We must help all architects unite all architects; open our society to all registered architects always; avoid personalities except in praise; speak well of each other; continually remember that growth is the natural pattern..."
- "Strong architecture can only be possible with strong architects. We must help each other to get strong and constantly aim for the good of all."

Much of that message is as applicable today as it was in 1959, and should remain as a guiding beacon to SARA members in whatever capacity they choose to participate within the organization. Yet, surprisingly few of SARA's members know more about the man, affectionately known as "Greg", but that he is listed on stationary and other SARA publications as Founder Wilfred J. Gregson, FARA.

Greg was born July 5, 1900 in London and graduated in the top of his class in 1921 from England's College of Engineering and Naval Architecture. He completed additional course work in architecture at Liverpool University and London University, and then immigrated to the United States later that year. He furthered his architectural studies in this country as the Pratt Institute of Design, the Beaux-Arts Institute, Hirons Atelier, Columbia University and New York University. All this preparation allowed him to practice architecture a mere five years until the stock market collapse in 1929 greatly reduced construction activities. Not to be deterred by this national economic downturn, Gregson directed his time and energy to personal, intellectual enrichment. In addition to English, Gregson spoke French, Spanish, German, Arabic and Hebrew-and read Sanskrit and Egyptian hieroglyphics. He became a familiar sight to the librarians of New York City. Whatever subject he was studying that week was laid out side-by-side for him in three, sometimes four different translations. He was the author of the book, Evidences of Masonry in Ancient Civilization, and was awarded the 33rd degree in Freemasonry for his education work in Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. As the devastating effects of the Depression lessened several years later, Gregson was retained by the United States Government as an associate architect, enabling him to travel to every state.

In 1939, Gregson moved to Atlanta, Georgia and registered as a practicing architect. He also registered in Alabama, Tennessee, Florida, Ohio, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, and West Virginia. Shortly thereafter, he became a member of the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB), serving five years on the Architects Examination and Registration Board of Georgia.

He and his wife, Lillian, were married more than 50 years. Lillian continues to reside in Decatur, Georgia in a nursing home. Wilfred Gregson passed away on July 8, 1998 three days after his 98th birthday.
History of the Pennsylvania Council
Annual Design Awards Program

The PA Council Professional Design Awards Program was initiated in 2004 by John Di Benedetto, FARA as a venue to recognize and celebrate extraordinary achievements in Architecture and Design and to promote the PA Council as a viable and energetic contributor to SARA’s network.

The program is intended to be an acknowledgement of Design excellence, not a competition among Architects’ projects. The selections of the award recipients are decided by a “jury system” composed of Architect peers, Architects from academia and Designers from associated professions. All entries are submitted and viewed by the jury anonymously. There are no restrictions regarding the date the project was designed or built, nor the location. Each year projects from around the country are submitted for consideration. A project that has received an award from the Pennsylvania Council Awards Program is prohibited from being reapplied to the program.

There are four levels of awards given. They are in descending value of importance: award of Excellence, award of Merit, award of Honor and award of Special Recognition.

The Design Awards Program is the result of many volunteer committee members who have dedicated innumerable hours to advertise, organize, publicize and present the program and to sponsors who have supported the Program and made it a reality. Further, we are grateful for the Jurors who volunteered their time to evaluate the entries in a fair and judicious manner.

We are truly indebted to the efforts of the Committee members, from the 2004 program to the present, including but not limited to Mitchel Abramowitz, FARA; Linda Abramowitz; Lisa Abramowitz (Deceased); Orsi Baller, Associate ARA; Nicholas Boblooch, Associate ARA; Jason Christensen, Associate ARA; Joann Di Benedetto; John Di Benedetto, FARA; Lisa Di Benedetto; Joan Di Grazia, R.A.; Melissa Dzielak, ARA; Keith Gibson, ARA, AIA; Bryan Kemper, ARA, AIA; Craig Lesher; E.J. WHY SARA?

Architects who are enlightened professionals and who are sensitive to their impact on the fabric of society make a positive contribution to the world around, improving both their profession and their community. Many are involved in church, charitable and service organizations, chambers of commerce and the advancement of ethical and social causes. Still others are active in various professional organizations, such as the Society of American Registered Architects (SARA), the Construction Specifications Institute (CSI) and the American Land Planners Association (ALPA) to name only a few. These are professionals who understand the concept of contributing to others and the importance of "giving something back". These are professionals who understand the way in which we practice architecture holds the potential to impact not only ourselves, but also society as a whole. What we do affects more than our clients; it affects the entire community.

That which sets The Society of American Registered Architects apart from other professional organizations is the principle, "Architect Helping Architect". SARA is not self-serving or competitive, but truly open in its membership and attitude. There are no hidden "trade secrets" and professional membership is based solely on the possession of an architecture license and a desire to join and participate in the benefits of membership. Neither sponsorship nor review and approval by committee is required. Unlike other organizations, there is only one class of professional membership, no special fees, no corporate structure and membership dues are the same in each state. State councils and local chapters are funded by membership dues distributed via national headquarters. The Student Scholarship Fund is the only voluntary contribution. Each member is an individual and the only requirements of membership are that you care about yourself, your fellow architects and your profession.

Membership in SARA offers the opportunity to learn, to share and to grow, both as an architect and as a person. Participation in local and national meetings, seminars, competitions and conventions and access to newsletters and magazines increases knowledge and ability. SARA provides the vehicle through which architects can work together for the betterment of society and the profession - that is to say "Architect Helping Architect" of which there can never be enough. Some of the benefits that membership in SARA include are:

- Chapter meetings and programs, where active participation in an intimate, sharing environment and learning, first hand, from fellow architects are encouraged. Professional Design Award Competitions, which provide equal opportunity for large and small firms to receive recognition for their work and the acknowledgement of their peers. The presentation of winning entries at the Awards Banquet.

- The Student Awards Program, which recognizes that the future of the profession rests with our young people. Winning projects are displayed at the National Convention and the winners are invited to attend to receive their awards. SARA members contribute time and money to sponsor the design competition in an effort to involve and initiate the schools of architecture in the philosophy of SARA.

- The practice of "Architect Helping Architect", which does, indeed, bring us together in the act of problem solving and at times, as a network of professional associations or joint ventures on special projects, and perhaps, most importantly, in fellowship.

We invite you to join us and share in the benefits of membership in SARA. Those of use who have been enriched by the interpersonal relations developed over the years with architects across American are secure in the knowledge that we can pick up the phone and have a SARA friend say, "How can I help you?" Those who have not had the opportunity to develop such relationships are missing much of what SARA has to offer.
