Since Beyoncé's sixth studio album Lemonade was released on Tidal Saturday night, there is a lyric from her new song "Sorry" that is getting everybody talking. The rumour mill worthy lyric "He better call Becky with the good hair" hints Beyoncé is dissing the woman who had allegedly had an affair with her husband, and is fully aware of Jay-Z's infidelity. Now we want to know, who really is Becky? Here's our analysis of the situation

Suspect One Rachel Roy

Roy is a celebrity fashion designer whose friends include A-listers, like Kim Kardashian.

Between 2005 and 2009, Roy was married to Jay-Z's former business partner and manager Damon Dash. There is speculation that Roy is the cause of the infamous elevator fight between Jay-Z and Bey's sister Solange Knowles after the MET Gala in 2014.

After Beyonce's visual album Lemonade aired on HBO, the fashion designer posted a photo on Instagram with the caption: "Good hair don't care, but we will take good lighting, for selfies, or self truths, always" – further igniting the rumour that Roy is in fact "Becky", the other woman in the relationship.

Since receiving passionate backlash from Beyhive fans, Roy has since changed her Instagram account to private and took to Twitter to on Sunday to respond to all the haters.

I respect love, marriages, families and strength. What shouldn't be tolerated by anyone, no matter what, is bullying, of any kind.

Fans are so invested and furious at what Roy "did" with Jay-Z that some individuals from the Beyhive changed her Wikipedia biography to say she "died under a lemonade stand".

This 25-year old British singer and actress is also rumoured to be another woman who has caught the eye of the music mogul.

Ora was spotted in West Hollywood on Monday wearing the exact red Gucci dress Bey wore in her "Formation" music video. Not to mention she posted a photo of herself on Snapchat wearing a lemon-patterned bralette, which got the beyhive to believe that she is "Becky with the good hair."

But, Ora took to Twitter on Tuesday afternoon, breaking her silence on the cheating allegations and denying that she "Becky" – "I never usually address tabloid gossip but let me be clear, these rumours are false." The ANTM host added she has "nothing but the utmost respect for Beyonce. Let's continue enjoying Lemonade."

Let's not forget that before the release of Beyonce's new album, the "Poison" singer had been linked to the "99 Problems" rapper, being signed to his RocNation music label. The two were also photographed embracing one another at last year's MET Gala.
