WE ARE YOUR WINDOW TO ASIAN WORLD CINEMA

The Asian World Film Festival (AWFF) brings the best of a broad selection of Asian World cinema to Los Angeles in order to draw greater recognition to the region’s wealth of filmmakers, strengthening ties between the Asian and Hollywood film industries.

Uniting through cross-cultural collaboration, our Festival champions films from 51 countries across Asia spanning from Turkey to Japan and Russia to India.

Asian World Film Festival is organized under Aitysh USA, a non-profit organization.
Dear Festivalgoers,

I would like to extend a very sincere and warm welcome to everyone attending our second Asian World Film Festival, here in Culver City.

Last year’s inaugural Festival was an outstanding success, attracting 30 films from 27 Asian countries which included 17 Oscar® submissions, 10 Golden Globe® submissions and an Oscar® nomination! It also hosted over 7,000 festival participants, and I am confident that this year’s Festival will be an even greater success.

I am delighted to announce that this year the Festival has partnered with the Hollywood Foreign Press Association and that we will be presenting the official screenings of many of the Asian films submitted to the Golden Globes® for Best Foreign Language Film.

We are also extremely honored to welcome Lighthouse Worldwide Solutions and CJ Entertainment as our Presenting Sponsors, Variety as our Media Partner and Etihad Airways as the Official Airline Partner.

I would like to thank Culver City, as well as all our existing and new partners for supporting the Festival. I would also like to thank everyone from Culver City and beyond for attending our Festival. I promise you that we will continue to screen only the very best of Asian cinema to as wide an audience as possible. I trust that this year you will all enjoy the tremendous selection of films that we have to offer from across the Asian continent.

I very much look forward to seeing you all at the Festival.

Sadyk Sher-Niyaz
Founder of the Asian World Film Festival
Founder of Aitysh Film, Kyrgyzstan

Greetings Friends and Film Enthusiasts!

The Asian World Film Festival is only in its second year, but we have already grown so much!

The Asian continent consists of 51 unique countries— from the mysteries of the Middle East to the magic of the Far East, by way of the fascinating Great Silk Road, colorful Russia and the Caucasus.

Our Festival is your window to the wealth of film talent that continues to be born between Heaven and Earth. We celebrate these Filmmakers. We celebrate the culture of the East that meets the West. I hope in our Festival you will discover far off regions you have never heard of, such as Yakutia, Buryatia, Tuva and Bashkortistan.

We are here to share our passion with you and with Hollywood. That is why it is so fitting that our Festival is located in Downtown Culver City, historically the very heart of screenland.

My team and I will be there for you, to welcome you with open heart and arms, to get to know you and live the 'moment' with you. We warmly welcome you to the Festival as part of our growing family. So come and share the love and passion of the seventh art and let cinema be the language of peace!

Yours cinematically,

Georges N. Chamchoum

Welcome Friends!

My first connection with the movies was when I was a child in my small village. Through the village speakers, I heard that a movie would be shown in a tent. Everyone was excited, but I couldn’t afford a ticket. I could only hear the narrators acting out the silent movie on the loudspeakers. My heart was beating with joy.

I cried and laughed with joy as the words touched my heart. Since then, with a passionate heart, I love movies.

Ask yourself, why do you go see movies? What do movies do to you? When you feel down, do movies lift your spirit? When you feel fear, do movies give you courage?

When you see movies about heroes, you forget all your troubles and suffering. You become the hero.

Thinking about movies, I find inspiration in the characters – how can I be like them?

Movies also capture history, culture and traditions.

From the deepest of my heart, I want the movies coming to this festival to inspire the whole world so everyone can see the beauty coming from Asia.

Let’s join together and synchronize our hearts. Let’s strive for our goals to make a global difference through the movies.

Let’s rejoice in the lessons of pain and hurt. It gives us strength and freedom! Let’s celebrate every living breath as if it were our last!

Just remember that the power is in you. What you do in your life is your personal choice!

He Can Do, She Can Do, Why Not Me!

From my heart to your hearts,

Tyrus Wong - Lifetime Achievement Award

Tyrus Wong is a living legend. Nearly all of America, if not the world, has seen his work, and most likely has been deeply moved by it. But few could tell you his name. Even fewer are aware of the impact his work has had, and continues to have, on American art and popular culture. At 105, he is America’s oldest living Chinese American artist and one of the last remaining artists from the golden age of Disney animation. “Tyrus Wong’s story is a prime example of one of the many gaping holes in our society’s narrative on art, cinema, and Western history. By telling his story, I hope to shine light on one of America’s unsung heroes, and to raise awareness of the vital contributions he’s made to American culture.”

One prime example of this is Tyrus Wong’s work on over one hundred live-action films including The Wild Bunch, Rebel Without a Cause, Sands of Iwo Jima, PT 109 and April in Paris. Later in his commercial art career, Tyrus designs greeting cards for Hallmark, and one of his Christmas card designs sells over 1 million copies. “Tyrus was one of the very first Chinese Americans to make a living in the world of art and film, which was difficult for minorities, especially notable in an era when minorities were virtually shut out of Hollywood,” explains Tom. As time will tell, Tyrus isn’t just making a living, he’s making history, and in 2001, is honored as such by being named a Disney Legend. Retrospectives of his work appear at the Walt Disney Family Museum in San Francisco and at the Museum of Chinese in America in New York City, among other venues.

On the personal side, Tyrus enjoys a half-century of marriage to Ruth Kim, and fatherhood to three daughters; Kay, Tai Ling and Kim. Now at the age of 105, Tyrus still lives a rich and vibrant life. He fills his truck with a colorful menagerie of hand-built kites and travels from his ranch home in Sun Valley to the beaches of Santa Monica to fly them. Surrounded by family and a coterie of fans, Tyrus launches his fanatical creations – 100-foot-long sandpipers, butterflies, panda bears, and flocks of cranes and swallows – skyward. There they soar high above the Pacific Ocean – the same ocean Tyrus crossed as a young boy 95 years ago.

ASIAN WOMEN IN HOLLYWOOD
Diversity has been a popular topic in the industry lately but it’s also very an old one. This panel has three keywords, Asian, Women and Hollywood. There are many ways to look into this topic but we would like to talk about possibilities as every word changes its meaning through time. We like to cover existing perspectives on Asian women in Hollywood and what we can create new perspective and new values during our discussion. Presented by the Korean Film Council, KOFIC

Date: 3:30pm - 5:00pm Sunday 30 October 2016
Location: The Filmmakers Lounge at The Culver Hotel

Panelists: TBD
Ali and Nino are upper-class teenagers living in Azerbaijan just before the outbreak of World War I. He is Muslim, and she is Christian—but despite their cultural differences, they love each other and get married despite the disapproval of their parents. When Ali takes her to spend several months in Persia, she realizes how much her freedom is being constrained. The clash between East and West and between traditional Muslim life and the twentieth-century independence of her upbringing is very striking. Then the Great War breaks out, and things take a turn for the worse.

A sweeping, politically charged love story, Ali & Nino captures a place and time rarely seen on screen. Director Asif Kapadia impressively shifts back and forth between documentary and fiction filmmaking styles. His documentaries, Senna (2011 Sundance Film Festival) and Amy (one of the most successful and acclaimed movies this year), and his fiction films including The Warrior prove he is a master storyteller in any genre.
South Korean Navy Special Forces, Captain Jang Hak-soo and 7 members of the KLO (Korean Liaison Office) unit disguise themselves as a North Korean inspection unit and infiltrate the North Korean army command center in Inchon. Their mission directives from Gen. MacArthur are: 1. Recon enemy forces in Inchon and secure the mine chart, 2. Kidnap ‘Ryu Jang-choon’, the second highest ranking officer in the North Korean command center, to acquire intelligence on the naval mine location and 3. On D-Day, to light the Palmido lighthouse as a signal to the main UN forces. Only when the lighthouse is lit will General MacArthur initiate the battle to take back Inchon. With everything they got, Jang and the KLO unit charge the lighthouse...

Q & A with Director John H. Lee
Presented by CJ Entertainment
Accused of helping a teenage boy on the run, newlywed Palestinian schoolteacher, Layal finds herself incarcerated in a top security Israeli prison for Palestinian and Israeli women. After being subjected to a harrowing reception from the female guards and inmates, Layal discovers that she is pregnant. The prison director pressures her to abort the baby and spy on the Palestinian inmates. Terrified but defiant, Layal gives birth to her child in chains. Through her struggle to raise her son behind bars and her turbulent relationship with the other prisoners, Layal manages to find a sense of hope and meaning to her life. When prison conditions deteriorate and the Palestinian prisoners decide to strike, the prison director warns her against joining the strike and threatens to take her son away. In a moment of truth, Layal is forced to make a choice that will forever change her life.

Mehmet is a man living with his family in a mountain village in the Black Sea region. He earns his keep, raising a few animals, while passionately looking for a mineral reserve on the mountains, but his pursuit is seen useless by his family. Devastated by vain efforts, his hope is renewed with a competition. Mehmet will attend the bull-fight held in Artvin, but he returns from Artvin completely lost, once again. This simple story pictures the naive portrait of a touching life, a life struggle in hardship and the relationship between nature, animals and human beings.

Brothers Ziad and Joe run a small but lucrative drug-dealing business out of their takeout pizzeria in one of Beirut’s working-class districts. With their youngest brother Jad about to be released from prison, Ziad and Joe plan to go straight by using their coke-peddling profits to open a restaurant. But Ziad’s supplier, a powerful drug lord who is none too keen to see his dealers retire, convinces the brothers to smuggle a million-dollar shipment of locally manufactured amphetamine to Syria. Smelling a trap, Ziad, Joe, and Jad hatch a plan to divert the shipment to Erbil in Iraqi Kurdistan. By chance, they learn that cans of exposed film reels are spared the obligatory X-ray scanning at the Beirut airport. Overnight, the three brothers become the producers of a feature film directed by Charbel, a talentless filmmaker and frequent customer whose tab at the pizzeria has vastly exceeded his means. As the shipping date approaches, the boys race to finalize the details of their very big plan while warding off the suspicions of their vengeful boss.

Tuong, may look may look like your typical eight year old adorable country bumpkin, but he has a secret: he actually is friends with a princess. Although everyone in his family and village may not believe him; Tuong knows that the princess exists and she will make him her prince. His pureness of the heart and beliefs give him the confident nature to not back down from any challenge or obstacle that he faces. In contrast, Thieu, Tuong’s slightly older brother, is very studious but also very timid in nature. His shy personality makes him an easy target for Son, the school bully. Set in Vietnam in 1989, this coming of age story explores the relationship between these two brothers as they seek to uncover the truth about the myth of the princess of the enchanted forest and the man-eating white tiger that guards her. Victor Vu, a seasoned filmmaker who started his filmmaking career at Viet Film Fest, has made a cinematic marvel in Yellow Flowers on the Green Grass. He has created a glimpse into the beauty and serene environment of Vietnam through this film that not only captures the audience’s hearts right away, but also leaves them with warm feeling of joy at the end.

Gaza. Synonymous to so many with conflict, destruction and despair but to Mohammed Assaf, and his sister Nour, Gaza is their home and their playground. It’s where they, along with their best friends Ahmad and Omar, play music, football and dare to dream big. Their band might play on second hand, beaten up instruments but their ambitions are sky-high. For Mohammed and Nour, nothing less than playing the world famous Cairo Opera Hall will do. It might take them a lifetime to get there but, as Mohammed will find out, some dreams are worth living for. Along the way, Mohammed will experience tragedy and loss. The world around him will shatter. Through it all, however, he will somehow retain the hope that his voice will somehow deliver him from the pain that surrounds him and bring joy to others. He sings at weddings, he drives a taxi to pay for his university studies. Even as the siege around Gaza intensifies, the prison around them ever more forbidding, Mohammed knows he has a rare gift. To make people smile and forget their troubles.

THE FAITH

Itgel, an ordinary public servant, gets a sudden boost in his career and joins the “minister’s team,” where his signature decides many people’s lives. Despite his influential new post, he fails to buttress his friend Akhbayar’s most important project. While anguishing over it, he learns that he has a terminal illness. What would you do if you were going to die tomorrow? Can you let your friend’s life crumble, leave your parents and loved one behind without disclosing the truth to them? Mongolia tops the world corruption index. The film reveals how young public officials fall victim to the current status quo of endless corruption and reminds the viewer of the fact that one is remembered for what he/she were and not what he/she had.

Set against a backdrop of immigration, poverty, and racial prejudice, TYRUS is the true story of 105-year-old pioneering Chinese American artist Tyrus Wong, revealed through the lens of filmmaker Pamela Tom. Reaching back to 1919, nine-year-old Tyrus and his father left their village and family in China. Tyrus' incredible journey takes him from the Angel Island Immigration Station in San Francisco where he is detained and interrogated, to earning a scholarship at the Otis Art Institute. During his 85-year career as a fine and commercial artist, Tyrus crosses paths with the likes of Picasso and Matisse, Walt Disney and Warner Bros. along the way. Although his design work was crucial to the animated classic Bambi and over 100 live-action movies including The Music Man, Rebel Without a Cause, and The Wild Bunch, the name Tyrus Wong remains largely unknown—until now. Tyrus’s life weaves an extraordinary thread in the tapestry of the American experience.

“Yes, darling. Rhinos and elephants and lions were real animals.... just like dinosaurs.”

Let’s not have this be the message we deliver to the next generation when we read them their bedtime stories. Help GES Africa Conservation Fund fight the criminal syndicates responsible for the slaughter of magnificent creatures who are indeed facing extinction because of poaching. With your help we can get the job done. Help us stop the rapid road to extinction... so today’s glorious animals don’t only exist in fairy tales for our children.
