

MINE STRIKERS LEAVE SHAFTS; ACCEPT PEACE

Pennsylvania Governor Goes Down Shaft Twice To Appeal To Men

DEMANDS TO BE GRANTED

Earle Pledges Support If Workers Are Reasonable In Their Demands

COALDALE, Pa., Oct. 12—(UP)—Thirty-seven anthracite miners ended their underground sit-down strike at the Coaldale colliery today after Gov. George H. Earle made two trips down the 1,222-foot shaft to urge them to accept peace.

The miners, hoarse and grimy after living almost a week in the damp, cold pit, came to the surface late last night, and were greeted by a cheering throng of relatives and friends. They had conferred for more than an hour with the governor, who had gone down the shaft for the second time at 10:15 P. M.

Earle carried a statement by James B. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Navigation Coal Co., which said that if the strikers would leave the pit, most of their demands would be granted. A similar offer was made last Saturday, but the strikers refused to accept it because it was not in writing.

The governor presented the statement to strike leaders in the dimly-lighted mine tunnel nearly a quarter-mile underground. Earle told them:

"When I feel that you men are not getting a fair deal in the negotiations, I will be with you, but I will not be with you if you are unreasonable."

After a hasty conference, the strikers decided to accept Warriner's proposal under which they will be paid on a basis of yardage of coal rock and soil removed daily instead of on a daily "consentation" basis. The change, they said, will enable them to make from $10 to $15 a day instead of the $6.75 they had been receiving.

PARTNER IN CRIME IS SAFE IN PENITENTIARY

Charles Gieseking, shown above manacled to Chief Ward Taylor, erstwhile member of the Brady gang of killers and robbers, is in Ohio penitentiary where he was sentenced for from 10 to 20 years by Judge E. E. Everett for his part in the Kay's holdup here.

Armed Trio Tries To Flee As Machine Gun Bullets Spatter In Street

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 12—(INS)—I was walking down Central-st. when I saw an Ohio car come tearing along. Behind it was a car loaded with men I later learned were G-Men.

From this car I saw machine guns sticking from the windows. Both machines were traveling at terrific speed.

The men in the first car were looking back at their pursuers. I could see the scared desperate look on their faces.

Suddenly the G-men's car and up alongside the bandit car and they stopped in the center of the street. The detectives jumped out and ran up the street holding their machine guns.

Three men dashed from the fugitive car and tried to run away. They held guns in their hands.

Both sides started firing and everybody on the street scattered for cover.

I was in front of a hardware store and I started to jump inside for shelter. At that very instant the door-window crashed at my feet. It had been hit by a machine gun bullet.

I jumped inside and fell onto the floor. There was a lot of gunfire outside. From where I lay I could see a man whom I later learned was Brady, running down the street—right in the middle.

As he ran there was a blast of bullets and he fell, struggled and lay still. I looked out and saw another man run down an alley. A few minutes later they brought him back—handcuffed. He was wounded. I have a permit for a gun I pulled it and started after him and the G-Men beat for they already had him.

his pistol and began to fire thru the glass.

Instantly the G-men, stationed behind the windows in the building across the street, opened fire with sub-machine guns, pistols and rifles.

Simultaneously guns began to rattle from cars in the vicinity, in which were seated police officers and G-men.

The neighborhood was immediately thrown into a state of great excitement as the bullets splattered all over the area.

Pedestrians in the vicinity scampered for cover. It was at a time when many white collar workers were on their way to their offices. Policemen appeared as if by magic and warned people to get out of the neighborhood.

GANG LEADER TRIES TO RUN

Realizing he and his pals were trapped, Brady started to run. He was riddled with bullets and dropped in the middle of a car track, 50 feet from where the bandit car was parked.

Shaffer got out of the car, too. In a flash he was dropped by a barrage of lead.

The scene of the battle was in Central-st, a principal thoroughfare, just around the corner from City hall.

Less than five minutes after the shooting hundreds of people were in the downtown area—but well back of the scene.

The man who gave the tip to the local police that the Brady mob was frequenting Bangor was a clerk in the Dakin sporting goods store.

When the tip was forwarded to Washington, a plane with eight G-men was rushed here. The federal agents loafed quietly here for several days, waiting for the gunmen to turn up again.

For at least six weeks the G-men had relentlessly pursued the Brady gang. Their activities were given nation-wide publicity last month following the dismissal of Capt. Matt Leach veteran head of the Indiana state police.

Leach's dismissal disclosed for the first time that Hoover had given orders to send the Brady gang "either to their graves or to prison."

Hoover had accused Leach of failing to cooperate with his G-men.

The Brady gang had been trained to Indiana, where they first opened their career of crime. This was after G-men had entered a downtown Baltimore, Md., office building, where they found more than 1,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition, automatic pistol clips, a musk and the holster and belt of an Indiana policeman killed following a bank robbery a year ago.

Homer S. Cummings, attorney-general of the United States, Hoover's superior, had posted a reward of $500 each for the arrest of Brady and his two henchmen.

The Brady gang was so dangerous G-men had orders to "shoot on sight." Just a year ago this time while the three were waiting trial for the murder of Sergt. Richard Rivers, Indianapolis policeman, they wrenched an iron bar from their jail cell window at Greenfield, Ind., and escaped after beating the sheriff unconscious and taking his gun—"a la Dillinger."

They had committed innumerable crimes since and were listed by G-men as three of the most vicious desperadoes in the country.

ASSASSINATION OF CONSUL DESCRIBED BY EYE WITNESS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following graphic description of how an assassin's bullet ended the brilliant career of J. Theodore Marriner, United States consul general at Beirut, Syria, was obtained today by International News Service in a telephone interview with Christian T. Steger, American consul at the Syrian capital. Steger revealed that Marriner was shot down in cold blood, without a chance for his life, and died within 10 minutes of being attacked.)

By CHRISTIAN T. Steger (United States Consul at Beirut). (Words Copyright, 1937 Production in whole or part prohibited.)

BEIRUT, Syria, Oct. 12—(Via Telephone to London)—(INS)—Consul General Theodore Marriner was shot at point blank range at 8:30 a. m. today as he stepped from his automobile in front of the American consulate here.

Doctors were summoned immediately from the American university, but also they arrived within 10 minutes they found Marriner dead.

The assassin was an American citizen of Armenian origin.

Marriner was en route to the consulate from his mountain villa when the assassin stepped forward and began shooting. The attacker was arrested immediately.

He fired five or six shots from a distance of three yards as the consul general opened the door of his automobile to step on the running board.

Marriner didn't stand a chance. Two or three of the bullets struck him.

I am convinced the outrage was not terroristic, and am taking no steps to protect the rest of the staff or the consulate.

I cannot confirm reports the assailant assassinated the consul general because he bore a grievance over alleged refusal to issue a visa.

I am positive Marriner had never before seen his attacker, and the latter had never before seen him.

We are at a complete loss to understand the motive for the crime.

I am confident the slayer had no grievance either against Marriner or the consulate staff. The consulate is not planning to protest to any authority, since the nature of the attack precludes laying the blame against anybody except an obviously distraught assassin.

Preliminary arrangements have been made to hold the funeral service for Marriner at 4:40 p. m. today. We are communicating with his relatives regarding burial, but anticipate his remains will be returned to the United States.

The entire affair has shocked and grieved all Americans here.

DELPHOS, Oct. 12—Glenn Ditto, chief of police and Dr. George Weber were subpoenaed to appear before the Van Wert-co grand jury now in session at Van Wert.

SEARCH ONE OF MOST INTENSIVE WAGED BY G-MEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—The hunt for Alfred Brady and members of his bandit gang was one of the most intensive ever carried out by the Department of Justice, officials said today.

Brady, the Indiana bad man whose chief ambition it was to "make John Dillinger look like a piker," eluded police throughout the nation since he escaped from jail with two companions at Greenfield, Ind., Oct. 11, 1936.

Search for the trio, Brady, James Dalhover and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., was spurred last June when Attorney General Cummings offered $500 reward for information furnished the FBI resulting in the arrest of any one of the three or $1,500 for arrest of the trio.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, ordered that all resources of the bureau to be focused on the search. At times as many as 20 agents, directed by Myron Gurnea, trick pistol expert, have trailed the Brady gang.

The three fugitives slipped out of a trap at Baltimore Aug. 11. Police there were tipped that guns and ammunitions would be delivered to the gang at a downtown building. Raiding the building police recovered four hand grenades, 1,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition, automatic pistol clips, a mask and the belt and holster of an Indiana state trooper who was killed in a gun fight last May.

The trooper, Paul Minneuman, was ambushed after the robbery of a bank at Goodland, Ind. His killers escaped after a running gun fight with two Baltimore policemen whose car was disabled by the bandits' bullets.

The Brady gangsters were arrested early in 1936 in connection with the murder of Police Sergeant Richard Rivers of Indianapolis, killed while trailing a bank robbery suspect. Brady was captured in Chicago and Dalhover and Shaffer elsewhere. Their jail break at Greenfield followed.
