

DESPERATE KILLER DIES OF WOUNDS RECEIVED IN FIGHT

A cursory examination developed the theory that Nelson had bled to death rather than dying instantly from the wound in his stomach.

The body—stomach, legs and chest torn with seventeen bullets—was taken to a Niles Center undertaking parlor whose proprietor was sworn to secrecy and not until 3:00 p. m. did he admit holding the remains of America's public enemy No. 1.

Nelson had grown a mustache to help escape detection, and his fingers had been mutilated with a chemical to defeat fingerprint experts. Nevertheless the prints were sufficiently legible to prove his identity beyond doubt.

Nelson, who fought a running fight with Hollis and Cowley as they sped along a highway, escaped last night in the automobile of the federal officers. The outlaws had halted the car, and pumped their machine gun bullets at Hollis and Cowley when the two stepped from their car and advanced toward the gangsters with drawn guns.

Hollis and Cowley, both of whom were with Federal Agent W. Carter Baum when he was slain, allegedly by Nelson, near the Little Bohemia summer resort not far from Mercer, Wis., last April 22, were en route to a house in which they believed Nelson and possibly John Hamilton were hiding when they spotted the desperadoes' car. In it were two men and a woman, the latter believed to have been Nelson's wife. She was believed to have been wounded.

Department officers would not say whether Clegg was present at the discovery. After reporters had been summoned into Cummings' office he emerged from an inner office and stood by while Assistant Attorney General William Stanley started to make the announcement.

Cummings then took up the conversation, visibly agitated. TWO LIVES FOR ONE

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the justice department's bureau of investigation who directed the activities, went into Cummings' office shortly after the announcement.

"We got him all right," he said, "but it was two lives for one. I am speaking only of the two men he got."

He referred to Cowley and Hollis. Search for Nelson was accelerated today with the finding of the justice department automobile which he took after the gun fight with the federal operators yesterday.

Later Stanley said the dead gangster's clothing had been found at 1:45 this afternoon, Eastern time, and the body was discovered about an hour later.

"You heard about it three minutes after we did," he said to newspapermen.

It was made known that the department of justice automobile which Nelson, a man and woman who accompanied him stole after the Barrington battle, had many bloodstains on it when found some time after the fight.

Justice department agents had been concentrated in the area for about two months.

Yesterday they got a tip from an undisclosed source that Nelson would be in the vicinity within a few hours. He was trailed and discovered.

Asked how they accounted for the fact that Nelson's body was unclad, Stanley said:

"We are not sure, but we think that those with him had tried to get him a new suit of clothes when he died on them. Then they threw him in the ditch."

He said the ditch in which both clothes and body were found runs along side the highway.

Questions as to whether the discovery was the result of a random search or through specific information drew non-committal responses.

The government suspects that the woman who accompanied Nelson was his wife.

The department announced that a fingerprint identification indicated "positively" that the body was that of Nelson.

Nelson and his wife, who are but twenty-five and twenty-one years old, are the parents of two children, a five-year-old boy and a four-year-old girl.

The boy has been seen with Nelson on several occasions in various sections of the country.

Nelson at one time was active in Chicago's tire theft racket and later went into liquor rackets. This was prior to prohibition repeal.

At various times he has been an associate of the Touby gang which was largely broken up by convictions for the kidnaping of John (Jake) the Barber Factor, international speculator.

Concerning Nelson a department statement issued late in the afternoon said:

"He has been definitely identified as one of two machine gunners who perpetrated a $32,000 bank robbery in Brainerd, Minn., in October 1933.

"Following Dillinger's escape from the Lake county jail he (Dillinger) joined with Nelson, John Hamilton, Homer Van Meter and Thomas Leonard Carroll and robbed the Securities National Bank at Sioux Falls, S. D., on March 6, 1934, obtaining approximately $49,500.

shortly after he was discharged from the Illinois state school for boys on July 11, 1926.

He remained in this vicinity for a year or so and then turned his attention to robbing banks in the Middle West.

E. P. Guinane, chief of the department of justice division in San Francisco, stated today that Nelson was in California on July 30, and went to Hawthorne, Nev., three weeks later, then returned to Chicago. For the last three months, Guinane said he had three agents seeking the criminal in Nevada, aided by two agents from Washington.

The following statement was issued this afternoon by E. P. Carville, United States attorney, concerning the Nelson case:

"In connection with the case of 'Baby Face' Nelson, the department of justice requested of the newspapers in this vicinity that no publication be given to matters in connection with this case and his operations in this vicinity. The press has co-operated very splendidly with the office of the department of justice in this respect, and the department is thankful for the public spirited interest of the press.

"Through positive identity it is known that Lester Gillis, alias 'Baby Face' Nelson, resided in Reno for some time during the years of 1932, 1933 and the early part of 1934 with his wife and one child.

"'Baby Face', at that time, was going by the alias of Jimmy Burnell and was well known to many local residents under that alias. It appears that he was engaged actively in various illegal occupations in and around Reno.

"In August of this year and possibly in October of this year Gillis visited Nevada and was on many occasions in Reno.

"In this connection it might be mentioned that at the time of the latter visit of 'Baby Face' Nelson, Special Agent Sam Cowley was in Reno and by various steps of investigative character he eventually found his quarry in Chicago.

"The investigation of this case was conducted under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division of investigation, and by the personal supervision of Edward P. Guinane, special agent in charge of the San Francisco office."

PUBLIC LANDS ARE WITHDRAWN

the proposition will be placed before the next congress which would have authority to act before the expiration of the six months' period.

The withdrawal order came after a series of conferences between the Secretary, F. R. Carpenter, recently appointed director of grazing and other officials of the interior department. Prior to the Washington conference a series of meetings with stockmen was held at various points in the West with Carpenter, Assistant Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman and other officials attending.

Carpenter is now in the West laying the ground work for the administration of the Taylor act. Withdrawal of all public lands will be followed by classification and then by the creation of grazing districts with users of the public domain in various sections being given wide latitude in the administration of the act particularly as it affects problems peculiar to various regions.

ROBBERY BANK

"The following week they robbed the First National Bank of Mason City, Iowa, securing approximately $52,000.

"Nelson has been identified by the sheriff's office of Hennepin county, Minnesota, as the individual who murdered Theodore W. Klidder, at Minneapolis, Minn., on March 4, 1934.

"He has been definitely identified as the man who was with Van Meter and Carroll in San Antonio, Tex., during November and December 1933 at which time they were in contact with H. S. Leberman, who had been engaged to convert automatic pistols into machine guns and to supply his gang with firearms.

"During the early part of 1934 Nelson is known to have been in the vicinity of San Francisco, Cal., associating with John Paul Chase, a California bootlegger."

Nelson, the statement said, began his criminal career at the age of fifteen. He was arrested in Chicago for the theft of an automobile.

He was sent to the Illinois state school for boys and paroled in April, 1924. He was returned to the institution the following September for violation of the parole but was given a second parole in July 1925.

VIOLATED PAROLE
He again violated his parole and was sent to the state school in October 1925. On July 11, 1926, he received his third and final parole.

His only prison term resulted from his implication in the robbery of the State Bank of Hillsdale, Illinois, for which he was arrested by Chicago police on January 15, 1931.

He was sentenced to one year to life at the Illinois state penitentiary at Joliet. He entered the institution on July 17, 1931. He was removed from prison to stand trial at Easton, Ill., on a charge of robbing the Itasca State Bank of $40,000 in February, 1932. He was found guilty and received another sentence of from one year to life February 17.

While being returned to the penitentiary at Joliet he made his escape.

"In October, do you remember Lady Ashley coming to his suite about 11:30 in the morning soon after Fairbanks returned from Paris, October 23?"

"Yes," Edwards answered. "Where did they go?"

"To his bedroom," Edwards testified.

"Were you in the suite all day?"

"Yes."

"Did you see them come out of the bedroom?"

Again Edwards answered "Yes." Edwards then testified Fairbanks was wearing a gown over his pajamas. He said Lady Ashley wore a fur coat.

Edwards added that Fairbanks took a house in the country where he and Lady Ashley went to live for a long period. He said he left the actor's service May 26, 1934.

The thirty-four-year-old Lord Ashley was quiet and serious throughout the brief proceeding. The court was fairly well filled with fashionably dressed spectators, including several stage folk.

ELY EMPLOYE FOUND DEAD OVER SHEEP SALE

ELY, Nev., Nov. 28.—(Special)—A blood clot in the heart brought death to James Ray, employe of Nevada Consolidated Copper Corporation who was found dead in bed Monday morning. It was decided by a coroner's jury called by Judge J. A. Johnson, and which heard the physician's testimony Monday afternoon.

J. H. Frazier, fellow employe and roommate of Ray, had reported that the latter had suffered a bump on the head while climbing a ladder while at work several days previously and had complained since. This led to an autopsy and investigation.

Physicians said the head wound was only a laceration and had healed before Ray's death. They found the blood clot.

COUNTRESS LEAVES ROYAL HUSBAND

PARIS, Nov. 28.—(T)—Countess Cavdonga started today for her home in Cuba, leaving the count behind after what friends said was a final and futile attempt at a reconciliation.

The beautiful Cuban for whom the prince abandoned his right of succession to the former Spanish throne, was silent as she left for Cherbourg to sail on the Berengaria for home.

Friends, however, said all hope of reconciliation vanished yesterday when the countess told her husband that her decision was final. She is going to Miami and thence to Havana.

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

The young host, about to perform for the first time as carver of the Thanksgiving bird in the new home, may not relish the advice, but all the same, it would profit him to help in the creature's scrubbing and cleaning. Moreover, he should watch the trussing—all this in order to get the "feel" of the joints and an intimate knowledge of the turkey's anatomy before he tackles it. Half the drama of the dinner is the luscious brown bird as it comes to the table, so don't, whatever you do, send it in in dejected slices.

There are several little things that will smooth the way for the carver. For one, let some other member of the party serve the vegetables. The carver will put the dressing on the plates and if there is no maid, will serve the gravy too. That's enough for him to think about. It will help, too, if the carving knife is sharp. A dull knife always means embarrassment and futile sawing.

ALXILIARY PLATTER URGED
Be sure that the platter on which the turkey is placed is large enough and not overcrowded with garnishings. Unless the carver is an expert a small platter placed at his left on which he may put the legs and wings will make the process more comfortable.

Finally, put the platter directly in front of the carver with the side of the turkey toward him. The crumple sticks to the right and the neck to the left.

Put the carving fork at the left, outside and above the host's silver, then the carving knife at the relatively same position at the right. The carver should plunge the carving fork over the breast bone at the highest point, force the side of the bone to get a firm hold. Unless you have a strong, well-balanced grasp with the fork, the disjointing and the slicing of the white meat will be difficult.

REMOVE THIGH WITH DRUMSTICK
First remove the whole leg, thigh and drumstick in one piece. To do this, make a downward cut through the skin between the thigh and the body, continuing in a circular swing around the joint. With the blade of the knife force the leg back and cut through the ligaments holding the thigh bone to the body. A quick little twist of the knife easily severs the joint. With another fork remove the piece to another platter unless the turkey platter is large enough to accommodate this piece and the wing, too.

Remove the wing on the same side in the same manner, making a circular cut around the joint close to the body. With the fork still in position, cut thin slices lengthwise from the breast beginning close to the place where the wing was removed. Work up the ridge of the breast, keeping the slices thin and parallel to the breast bone. CUT MEAT OFF DRUMSTICK

Now remove the fork from its position over the breast bone and thrust it into the leg cut off. Separate the drumstick from the thigh by cutting down to the joint, pressing the point, apart with the blade of the knife and, cutting the ligaments. Again a quick twist and firm pressure with the knife does the trick of forcing the joint from its socket.

Cut the meat from the second joint and drumstick in neat pieces, slicing parallel to the bone. Make a wide incision in the apron for serving the stuffing. Unless you are sure that the whole turkey will be needed for the first serving, carve only one side at first and serve it before carving the second side. This keeps the other side hot for "seconds."
