1. ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We express our gratitude for the partners of the SNAP Advisory Network. We look forward to another great year.

A special thanks to the USDA FNS Western Region and Idaho State Department of Health and Welfare for their guidance in this effort.
2. A Call to Action

The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), better known in Idaho as the Food Stamp Program, is an essential front line program for responding to hunger and food insecurity throughout the state. In 2017, 1 in 10 Idahoans participated in the program. Furthermore, the majority of food stamp recipients are children, elderly, or disabled. Looking at hunger through a wider lens reveals that 13% of Idaho residents and 16.7% of Idaho children are food insecure (Center for Budget and Policy Priorities, 2018).

Due to Idaho’s regulatory restrictions, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare (DHW) is not permitted to perform educational activities around the food stamp program. Therefore, the Idaho Hunger Relief Task Force convenes the Idaho SNAP Advisory Network to conduct this important work.

This document serves as the sixth Idaho plan.
3. Celebrating our 2018 Successes

"In 2018, The Idaho Foodbank launched our Hunger to Health strategy, focusing on the well-being of individuals, along with the health of communities across our state through access to nutritious food and other resources required for good health. Committed to collaborating and partnering with other organizations and individuals, we are focused on 4 strategies: Nutrition, Education, Social Determinants of Health, and Community Health. In an effort to promote SNAP utilization, The Idaho Foodbank distributed over 5,850 SNAP brochures across the state through our programs in 2018. Additionally in 2018, every Mobile Pantry across the state received the SNAP brochures to distribute including our senior and healthcare mobiles."

"This year had a 50% increase of SNAP redemptions at the farmers market and an increased interest in the local food resource guides."

"We have had great success with our Food is Medicine program in partnership with the Family Medicine Residency of Idaho. Utilizing the 2-question food insecurity screening tool, patients who screen positive are referred to us and Care Navigators follow up to assess what is impacting their food access. Many, many times it is not directly about food—It’s transportation, heating bills, and such. Our most exciting new program is our Prescription for Fresh Fruits & Vegetables. Patients screening positive for food insecurity and a diagnosis of diabetes or hypertension were eligible for a prescription for fresh fruits and vegetables and reported weight loss, diabetes control and increased consumption of produce."

"There are a couple individuals who were hugely opposed to food stamps. And they finally came to the conclusion that it could be something that could help them. They come in regularly now to connect with us and utilize our resources. We facilitated their readiness once they got to that place on their own. I'm proud of our ability to create those relationships. It's hard to know how many people follow through and get the food stamps or not."
4. Opportunities for Growth

The Network has been fortunate to have the continued involvement and relationship with the USDA FNS Western Region. With input from the Western Region and with attention to nationwide trends and best practices, the Idaho Network will continue to organize goal development and evaluation around the following program focus areas:

- Program Information & Access
- Multicultural Food Security
- Healthcare Partnership
- Advocacy and Awareness
- Community Food Security

The Idaho SNAP into Action Network began tracking financial investment in 2015 for the SNAP into Action Plan and will continue to estimate partner funding that supports the only private-sector plan in the nation.
The SNAP Advisory Network partners have once again submitted letters of commitment as attached to the Plan and will continue to update the group and evaluate goals on a quarterly basis. As the convener of the Plan, the Idaho Hunger Relief Task Force will continually survey and provide requested technical assistance as partners find useful.
