Patsie was born in Barrea, Italy and immigrated at the age of three to the U.S.A. with his parents, Thomas and Maria Nicole Campana, and settled in Lorain, Ohio.

Patsie's natural hunger to learn caused his career to rise steadily, although he was not afforded formal education beyond high school. He taught himself through reading and correspondence courses. Early in his career, he commanded respect for his intuition and his ability to quickly apply his skills.

At the age of 49, confident of his accumulated knowledge and "hands-on" experience, Patsie risked all he had to start his own company, which grew into a multi-million dollar conglomerate. Patsie began his firm as an electrical contractor and became immersed in the steel and pipe industries, creating many of his own patents along the way, and his valuable legacy continues.

Patsie married Dolores Jenee' Hume in 1946 and the couple had six children: David, Patti, Larry, Pat Jr., Bob and Scotti. Patsie's family encourages students to find hope in his story and become inspired to 'become a part of the American Dream by believing in yourself, working hard, declaring vision, and hungering for education.'

Rollin Karg, Artist
Starlight Guardian Humanitarian Award

Rollin Karg, engineer turned photographer turned potter turned woodworker turned glassblower, has turned his one-time hobbies into a full time career. He attributes his artistic inclination in part to a strong desire to work with his hands, coupled with the inspiring, park like location of his studio. This is where Rollin creates his fragile, one-of-a-kind treasures.

Standing under his spectacular awning and facing the furnace he built, Rollin concentrates on working the hot glass. Skillfully, Rollin turns a flowing globe, adding intricate, colorful designs to the crystal-clear mass. The fiery furnace and forces of gravity heighten the artist's exhilaration at bringing dramatic form to the soft, hot glass. The excitement is intensified by nature's own beautiful backdrop and exquisitely unique glass pieces are born.
