Welcome!

A message from the President

The Division of Rehabilitation Psychology (APA Division 22) is delighted to welcome you to our program at the annual American Psychological Association Convention in Chicago, IL!

For our Division programming, Dr. Valerie Ellois, and the program committee worked hard to develop an exciting, cutting-edge program. Division 22 is participating in 31 program hours overall, focusing on Division themes including rehabilitation psychology science and practice and diversity and social justice issues. Our participation in seven collaborative symposia and skill-building sessions allows us to reach beyond our comfort zone and consider cross-cutting issues and challenges, as well as transferable knowledge and skills. These collaborative sessions are a great opportunity to showcase Rehabilitation Psychology and to welcome membership in the Division.

Our Hospitality Suite programming, organized by Dr. Evan Smith, and our student representatives, Ted Allaire and Madison MacKenzie, provides relaxed opportunities to make new connections and enjoy the company of old and new friends and colleagues.

We are pleased to once again be co-hosting a joint social hour and awards ceremony with the Committee on Disability Issues in Psychology. Please join us on Thursday, 8/8, at 7pm in Marriott Marquis Chicago Hotel Glessner House Rooms B and C. Whether you are student, trainee, ECP, or have been attending the APA Convention for years, we look forward to seeing you!

As you make your way through the convention, please bear in mind the Disability-Affirming Considerations for Professional Meetings included in this Conference-at-a-glance. We all need to work together to make the APA convention a preeminent example of disability awareness and inclusiveness.

Finally, I extend a huge thank you to our sponsors for making our Division 22 Hospitality Suite programming and social hour possible. I am humbled by their commitment to Rehabilitation Psychology and to improving the lives of people living with disabilities and chronic health conditions.

Joseph F. Rath, PhD
President | APA Division 22

Thank you to our sister organizations!

At convention and throughout the year, the Division of Rehabilitation Psychology (APA Division 22) works closely with the American Board of Rehabilitation Psychology, the Foundation for Rehabilitation Psychology, the Council of Rehabilitation Psychology Postdoctoral Training Programs, and the Academy of Rehabilitation Psychology. We thank our colleagues for their continued support!
Disability-affirming considerations for professional meetings

Considerations for increasing disability awareness and inclusiveness are offered.

By Julie L. Williams, PsyD (http://www.apa.org/search.aspx?query=&fq=ContributorFilt%3A%22Williams%2C%20Julie%20L.%22&sort=ContentDateSort desc), and Carrie Pilarski, PhD (http://www.apa.org/search.aspx?query=&fq=ContributorFilt%3A%22Pilarski%2C%20Carrie%22&sort=ContentDateSort desc)

It is important to encourage and promote experiences at meetings or conferences that are inviting and inclusive for all individuals regardless of ability, age or life status. However, individuals with disabilities or chronic illness make up one of the largest minority groups that continue to face physical and attitudinal barriers that limit full participation. While we continue to encourage universal design concepts in the built environment and presentation of information that will maximize use by all, without the need for adaptation, we still need to recognize diverse needs that might require accommodations and find ways to affirm disability as another diversity variable.

The following considerations are compiled in an effort to encourage further disability awareness and inclusiveness among participants at conferences or professional meetings:

- Remember, disability intersects with multiple diversity variables including but not limited to age, gender, race and ethnicity and that not all people are disability identified, regardless of presence of disability.
- Remember, that disability comes in many forms, those that are visible and those that are invisible. Be aware of this as you are discoursing about disability. Assume nothing.
- Be inclusive of those living with chronic health issues, as these individuals are often excluded from the spectrum of disability.
- Be aware that mental health disability is also considered to be part of the disability community. As psychologist we are comfortable talking “about” those we diagnose, forgetting, we are those people.
- Please be aware of environmental barriers and be willing to participate in addressing those barriers. For example, as you move into and out of assemblies, please consider placing chairs back in their places to avoid creating obstacles in walkways and thoroughfares. If spaces are left open for individuals using a wheelchair, please leave those spaces open.
Please consider asking yourself if using the stairs or an escalator is a viable option, particularly during high traffic times, and give priority for elevators to those with mobility issues and/or other chronic health issues that may make climbing stairs difficult, dangerous and/or impossible.

Please recognize the limited options for accessible bathroom stalls and leave those for individuals who might only be able to utilize those stalls.

Bathroom doors, are tricky business... Why do we have them? When doors are not automated, these create annoying barriers at best, worse yet, can even be potentially dangerous to those trying to exit a bathroom via pulling the door in when others are rushing from the outside to enter a bathroom.

When a microphone is located in a presentation room, use it. Likely, a participant has requested amplification and has had many presenters, assume it’s just overkill and not necessary.

Feel free to offer support or assistance to others, but wait to hear from the person about what they would like rather than making assumptions. In other words, be flexible.

And finally, just for kicks... try only entering and navigating APA convention events via handicapped accessible means... and take the time to offer feedback for improved inclusivity.

Ongoing efforts are needed to improve accessibility and recognition of diverse experiences with disability. Continued feedback on issues with accessibility is needed to maintain awareness and promote change. APA’s Committee on Disabilities Issues in Psychology (CDIP) and the Disabilities Issues Office are committed to continuing communication with the Convention and Meeting Services Office and the Board of Convention Affairs about the diverse needs of convention attendees. Representatives for CDIP and the Disability Issues Office, Carrie Pilarski, PhD, and Anju Khubchandani, PhD, recently participated in the pre-convention accessibility site review with the ADA consultant. An accessibility report will be generated by the ADA consultant which can be accessed by attendees in order to know the lay of the land, and also to serve as a way to inform convention sites and the surrounding community of areas for improvement. Feedback and continued communication efforts are also being made through the Board for Advancement of Psychology in the Public Interest by Dolores Cimini, PhD, to work with the APA information technology department to test accessibility with the convention app using voiceover technology. It is expected that continued feedback and efforts to communicate the need for change can result in future improvements that promote full participation. We are looking forward to APA’s 2014 Annual Convention, Aug. 7-10, in Washington, D.C., and encourage continued feedback from attendees on issues with accessibility.

Arrangements for Persons With Disabilities

If you will be attending APA 2019 and require special arrangements and accommodations, please select the appropriate boxes on the registration and housing forms. We ask that you register by July 16, 2019, so that we can help make APA 2019 more accessible for you; otherwise, we may not be able to guarantee the availability of arrangements.

APA will provide interpreters for hearing-impaired persons and escorts and readers for persons with visual impairments upon specific request at the time of advance registration.

During the convention, persons with disabilities who require assistance may visit the APA Accommodations and Disability Resources Room in Hall F of the McCormick Center–West Building.

Additional information regarding accessibility in the convention facilities and surrounding area may be obtained from the APA Convention Office or the APA Office on Disability Issues in Psychology.
Calling all Rehab Rockstars! We got some new merch for you to rock and represent Division 22!

Bring your cash or checkbook (no credit card) to the Hospitality Suite during APA 2019 on Saturday from 10-12PM. $15 per T-Shirt (available sizes include S, M, L, and XL).
The Early Career Professionals SIG & Student Leadership Network cordially invite you to:

WHAT IS REHABILITATION PSYCHOLOGY?

Rehabilitation Psychology is a specialty area within psychology that focuses on the study and application of psychological knowledge and skills on behalf of individuals with disabilities and chronic health conditions in order to maximize health and welfare, independence and choice, functional abilities, and social role participation across the lifespan.

OUR MISSION

To lead the community of psychologists who, through research, practice, education and advocacy, enhance the well-being of people living with disability or chronic health conditions.

ABOUT THE DIVISION

Since 1958, APA Division 22, Rehabilitation Psychology, has connected psychologists working with people with diverse disabilities and chronic medical conditions across the lifespan. Rehabilitation psychologists work in a variety of settings (e.g., acute hospitals, rehabilitation centers, academic institutions, legislative offices, and independent practice) to provide compassionate, essential care to people with disabilities and/or chronic health conditions.

Our mission is to lead the community of psychologists who, through research, practice, education, and advocacy, enhance the well-being of people living with disability or chronic health conditions.

Our vision:

- Set the standard of practice for culturally competent, evidence-based, holistic, and personalized care.
- Promote innovative and rigorous research to improve outcomes, services, and organizations, and reduce costs.
- Set the standards for education and training in the competencies of rehabilitation psychology.
- Be the premier source of psychological knowledge regarding disability and chronic health conditions for healthcare professionals, policymakers, the public, and the media.
- Champion disability as a human rights and social justice issue.
- Move communities and organizations towards greater access for all in health care, the workplace, and public engagement.

Through these activities, members work toward a fundamental goal of Division 22 – to minimize barriers to full participation in society by persons with disabilities.

MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS

APA Division 22 embraces members with a diversity of interests. We welcome professionals from other psychological specialties and fields associated with rehabilitation, as well as interested students and trainees. Members of Division 22 enjoy a wide range of benefits, including:

- An electronic subscription to Rehabilitation Psychology, the official journal of APA Division 22. An optional print version of the journal is available at a special members-only rate of $9.50 per year.
- Discounted registration for our Annual Mid-Winter Conference, jointly organized with the Academy of Rehabilitation Psychology. Programming focuses on advances in practice and research, and includes sessions to advise members pursuing ABRP credentials.
- Subscription to our Division listserve, where members share valuable information related to practice, advocacy, education, and research.
- Opportunities to serve on the Division’s committees, become involved in the sections – Pediatric Rehabilitation Psychology and Women’s Issues in Rehabilitation Psychology – or join one of our special interest groups.
- Special opportunities for students and Early Career Psychologists. Division 22 is known for its efforts fostering careers and leadership skills of students and ECPs. The Division 22 Executive Committee includes an Early Career Representative and a Student Representative. The Division boasts an active mentoring program and strong student-oriented programming at all Division conferences.
- A comfortable home in the company of friendly, talented, and energetic individuals committed to improving the quality of life of people living with chronic health conditions and disability.

MEMBER CATEGORIES

There are four membership categories in APA Division 22:

FULL MEMBERS

Psychologists with interest and expertise in the psychosocial aspects of disability who are current members of the American Psychological Association. Annual fee: $40

AFFILIATE MEMBERS

Professionals from related disciplines such as rehabilitation counseling, speech therapy and audiology, rehabilitation nursing, and other health, medical, and related disciplines with an interest in disability-related issues are eligible to be affiliate members of Division 22, as are psychologists who are not members of APA. Affiliate members cannot vote or hold office in the Division. Annual fee: $45

INTERNATIONAL AFFILIATES

International affiliates are welcome, though a higher rate is necessary to cover postage for journals. Annual fee: $52

STUDENT MEMBERS

Students, interns, and postdoctoral fellows/residents in Psychology and related disciplines are eligible to become student members of Division 22. Annual fee: $25
