Mission
Manna Project International connects college students, recent graduates and young professionals with international service opportunities to apply their passions and education collectively through service to communities in need.

Vision
Our vision is communities serving communities. MPI’s model is a collaborative community-based approach to development stressing three organizational pillars: Holistic Approach, Community Focus and Leadership Development.

From the Executive Director
Dear Manna Project Community,

Our strong community relationships, one of MPI’s most powerful assets, were fundamental to the numerous successes we achieved during the 2012-2013 year. Our model provides us with the opportunity and privilege to know personally the individuals in the communities where we work. Our dedicated Program Directors live alongside the community, continually learning and growing with them. This level of engagement and participation sets MPI apart within the field of international development.

The relationships we build on the ground enable us to hear what community members believe are their greatest needs and opportunities. Through community relationships we are able to engage multiple members in the same family, strengthening our holistic approach and increasing overall impact. Moreover, our relationships afford us the opportunity to be aware of, and respond to, time-sensitive and community-specific challenges. Foundational to each of the profound stories of impact shared in this report are MPI’s community relationships.

We have the opportunity to build community relationships in Nicaragua, Ecuador and Guatemala, and to have the impact we do, because of our relationships with you. Thank you for being a part of our “communities serving communities.”

With much gratitude,

Lori Scharffenberg Warren
Executive Director

MPI Organizational Pillars:

Holistic Approach - MPI takes a holistic approach to development, recognizing that the challenges facing the communities we serve are multifaceted and must be addressed through a variety of disciplines.

Community Focus - By focusing on a specific community, MPI is able to effectively pursue holistic development with the foundation of building relationships and trust with community members.

Leadership Development - Investing in MPI’s volunteers and their personal and professional development is an intentional part of our organizational structure, allowing MPI to make an impact in communities now while preparing our volunteers for further impact in the future.
Impact at a Glance

“MPI is an example to replicate. The Program Directors demonstrate that young people can change the world.”
— Patricio Silva, MPI Ecuador program participant

IMPACT by the NUMBERS 2012-2013

- Livelihoods Micro-Finance, Small Business Development Training, Women’s Cooperatives, Computer Literacy, Agriculture Development

MPI Campus Chapters

MPI Chapters are student-led groups connecting students with the global community through on-campus, local, and international service initiatives. Chapters include:

- Vanderbilt University
- University of Georgia
- University of North Carolina - Chapel Hill
- Duke University
- Tulane University
- University of Michigan
- University of Texas
- Worcester State University

18,470 hours invested in community programs by 2012-2013 MPI Program Directors.

MPI’s Program Directors are passionate and committed young adults that volunteer from 5-13 months at our international sites. Supporting MPI’s staff of six, our Program Directors allow us to conduct community programs in a high-quality, personalized and cost-efficient manner.

“Combining personal development with community development, the Program Director position is really a fascinating and unique opportunity. Having one year abroad feels like several years of experience at home.”
— Kiely Barnard-Webster, Nicaragua Program Director 12-13
GUATEMALA

Chaquipa
53.7% live below the national poverty line

The bottle school project has had a great social and environmental impact on our community.
—Esteben Toc, Guatemalan School Director

Launched in December 2011, the Bottle School Project was completed in June 2013. The space was constructed using more than 16,000 plastic bottles and provides an additional 4 classrooms for 200 students at the public school in Chaquipa. Guatemala has the lowest primary school completion rate in Central America at 40%, with only 20% of students completing lower secondary education. Recognizing the many variables contributing to low graduation rates, MPI supports local schools with investments in teacher training, resources and infrastructure.

NICARAGUA

Managua
42.5% live below the national poverty line

“I feel supported by Manna and know the clinic staff and MPI PDs will visit when my children are sick, especially my youngest, the twins, who are involved in the Child Sponsorship program.” —Yamileth Trujillo

Yamileth Trujillo, a 29 year old mother of 4, depended on MPI’s clinic in La Chureca - a community located at the base of Nicaragua’s largest municipal dump. In December 2012, the Nicaraguan government closed the dump, demolished Yamileth’s home and appropriated our clinic. In March, Yamileth was excited to help us relocate to a space in her new community, Villa Guadalupe, where we are able to continue providing primary healthcare, health education and women’s empowerment programs for Yamileth and her neighbors.

ECUADOR

Chillos Valley
27.3% live below the national poverty line

“It would have been impossible to get a loan like Manna’s from a bank.”
—Blanca Pachacama

Average interest rate on loans is 23%

Dario and Blanca have sold organic fertilizer, handcrafted wooden birdhouses and guinea pigs for years, but they have never had sufficient capital to scale these businesses and increase their profits. After receiving a low-interest micro-loan and an opportunity to evaluate their business model from MPI, they have documented increased profits, improved well-being and increased household income. After 100% repayment by all participants on the initial $2,000 in micro-finance loans, Dario and Blanca are now working with MPI to empower and equip other families with the capital and business skills to start or grow their businesses.
