I currently work on the Marketing Team for Teachers Pay Teachers (TpT) -- an online site where teachers can buy, share, and sell educator-created content for their classrooms. I get to work directly with teachers all over the world and make meaningful connections with them. It’s really incredible to see the impact that a product can have on a student’s education.

To apply for our Program Director position, click the link below. You will be able to upload your resume and cover letter. We are looking for someone with leadership experience, strong communication skills, and a passion for international development.

Please tell me a little bit about what you are currently pursuing.

The day-to-day work at Manna can often go unrecognized, so I love the work I get to do as part of the Marketing team and sharing teachers’ stories.

I found my love for education as a PD with Manna. Teaching English levels 4 and 5 and also being one of the pioneers behind the English Vocational Training program was the most rewarding experience. I just went back to Nicaragua in February, and more than 5 of our English students currently work in call centers in the country that they’ve grown to love. It’s incredible to see how much the students have grown and how much they have contributed to their communities.

I started coming to the community center every afternoon. Her energy is refreshing and all of the Program Directors have come to know her like a little sister. Valentina is an 8 year old girl who recently started coming to the community center every afternoon. Her energy is refreshing and all of the Program Directors have come to know her like a little sister.

Please apply to be a Program Director to work on programs like Guitar class, you can donate here and we are grateful Reynaldo chose to take the option of a short-term trip with us, check out this page on our website.

The 5th Annual Cedro Galán 5k Run for Health is a fantastic event for the kids in the community. They spent an entire day tie-dying shirts, and then on Thursday the students got to show off their colorful designs at the event! The event also included a beautiful display of art made by the kids. The groups also helped with various activities at local daycare, Gotitas del Saber. At Gotitas, the local veterinarians as they performed spay and neuter operations on ten animals at no cost to the families. Thank you for all your help, Vanderbilt University and one from University of California and one from University of California and we are grateful Reynaldo chose to take the option of a short-term trip with us, check out this page on our website.

Papallacta Retreat

The groups painted murals, built a tire jungle gym and resort prizes, Papallacta is a must-see attraction! It has natural hot springs. Having won various awards for its natural beauty, Papallacta is a popular destination. The retreat is a great opportunity for the Program Directors to practice their leadership skills and see incredible wildlife! To live your personal challenge or simply to support an organization?
