

GEAR TEST

All-in-One Brewing and More!

CRAFT Beer & Brewing

FOR THOSE WHO MAKE AND DRINK GREAT BEER

Hoppy Lagers: Remixing Tradition

- » Czech, German, or American Pilsner: What Does It All Mean?
- » Carlsberg or Tuborg? Stan Hieronymus on Lager Yeast
- » Lager Recipes from the Pros

What Would Vinnie Drink?
Russian River Brewmaster Vinnie Cilurzo's Dream 6-Pack

COOK WITH BEER Creative Summer Grilling With Beer!

AUG-SEP 2016 » $9.99 » BEERANDBREWING.COM

SPONSORED CONTENT

Beer Gear Essentials

Stuff to make your brew days more efficient, your drinking days more convenient, and your gifts of beer more endearing..

» GO BIG OR GO HOME
Yeti's massive 30 oz. Rambler insulated cup can hold almost an entire half-gallon of beer in a single glass. Not only that, but the double-walled vacuum-insulated construction means that all of that beer will stay cold as you drink it. If big isn't your style, a 20 oz. option is also available—perfect to hold an imperial pint. And if you need a pick-me-up the next morning, they handle hot coffee or tea just as well. yeticoolers.com

» GO DIGITAL
If someone offered you a digital refractometer for about the same price as a decent optical refractometer, would you buy it? Well, here's your chance. The Milwaukee Instruments MA871 may not have all the bells and whistles of higher-end units, but it's accurate, automatically compensates for temperature, and you could buy four of them for the price of one of their competitors' refractometers. milwaukeeinstruments.com

» THE GIFT OF GOOD TASTE
Whether you're gifting your own homebrew or have built a special six-pack for that special someone, these custom six-pack carriers and bottle neck tags are the classy way to give the gift of beer. Styles range from "Happy Birthday" to "Happy Holidays," "Six Ways I Love You," and more. And if you prefer bombers or 750s over 12 oz. bottles, don't worry—the hang tag versions hug the neck of your bottle while attractively getting the message across. beergreetings.com

