In 2015, Laumeier was the recipient of a $1 million grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to develop an “alternative” microsite. The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative. Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, which opened on December 8, 2017, through commissions published in an online microsite. The Kranzberg Family Collection of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection and currently features milestones, projects are designed to support the growth of Laumeier’s Permanent Collection; if you see anyone interacting with an artwork inappropriately, please contact the Park Rangers at 314.615.8911.

The Kranzberg Exhibition, a conversation with or as an "aural portrait" of one of the long-time collectors, Nancy and Ken Kranzberg, was one of the projects developed as part of this funded initiative.

Other projects included an exhibit dedicated to the Kranzberg family, a site-specific installation of a botanically inspired art installation, and a group show dedicated to “plants/gardens” and a private collection show of historical botanical art. These temporary, rotating exhibitions showcase a variety of art media including, but not limited to, printmaking, sculpture and textiles. Materials are available by appointment only.