News of the Society

In this Newsletter

The Annual Meeting next month is an opportunity to meet, to reconnect, and to share our work.

In addition to the Friday Board Meeting and a Members’ Meeting on Saturday, this year there are two regular panels, “Deep Listening and Spiritual Care” and “New Perspectives on Buddhism and Multiple-Religious Belonging.” There is also a panel by the Comparative Theology and Contemplative Studies groups on Loyola and Shantideva that includes several of our members.

In this newsletter, also find information on:

- Union’s recent conference,
- An ACLS grant program
- An upcoming Woodenfish study seminar in Sichuan, China
- News for Buddhist-Christian studies, including the upcoming World Council of Church’s 10th Assembly in Busan, Korea

If you are not a member of the Society, we invite you to join via our website or at the conference. If you have any announcements to share, feel free to contact me and they can go in the next newsletter or on our facebook page.

2013 SBCS Annual Meeting

P22-103/203 Board Meeting
Friday, Nov. 22, 9:00-11:30 am; 1:00-3:30 pm;
Pickersgill Room at the Hilton Baltimore

Last year’s meeting included a fruitful updating of SBCS constitution and bylaws, bringing us into the digital age. Common meeting topics include journal and panel topics, the state of our membership, ways to promote the work of the Society, and special topics.

SBCS Panel 1: Deep Listening and Spiritual Care

Friday Nov. 22 4:00 pm-6:30 pm
Baltimore Convention Center, Room 348

Alice A. Keefe, University of Wisconsin, Stevens Point, Presiding

Panelists:

Duane Bidwell, Claremont School of Theology in the Claremont Lincoln University consortium

Sandra Costen Kunz, Trinity Theological Seminary, Legon, Ghana

Judith Simmer-Brown, Naropa University

Willa B. Miller, Harvard Divinity School

Responding: John Makransky, Boston College

In the Buddhist contemplative care movement, the practice of Deep Listening involves both empathetic openness to religious others (their perspectives and needs) and close attention to one’s own multiple religious voices and perspectives. This panel explores the interdependence of spiritual care, compassionate action, and deep listening to others and to one’s own religious diversities.

Panelists are invited to (a) explore the importance of attention to a practitioner's multiple religious voices in the context of spiritual care and other compassionate actions and (b) offer particular methods, examples, and/or recommendations to inform this kind of engagement. Papers that draw from personal experiences in spiritual and pastoral care, teaching, worship/liturgy, and/or preaching/proclamation are especially encouraged.

The panel represents an initial formal exploration of a "practical theology" of religious multiplicity, Buddhist-Christian thought, and spiritual care informed by Buddhist-Christian studies.

SBCS Panel 2: Buddhism in the West Group and the Society for Buddhist Christian Studies

New Perspectives on Buddhism and Multiple-Religious Belonging

Saturday Nov. 23 9:00 am-11:30 am
Baltimore Convention Center, Room 318

Wendy Cadge, Brandeis University, Presiding
Panelists:

Harold Kasimow, Grinnell College
Reflections on Jewish and Christian Encounters with Buddhism

Richard K. Payne, Institute of Buddhist Studies at the Graduate Theological Union
Integrating Christ and the Saints into Buddhist Ritual: The “Christian Homas” of Yogi Chen Proposal

Emily Sigalow, Brandeis University
Hybridizing Beliefs: Jewish-Buddhist Perspectives on Death, Suffering, and God

Kristin Johnston Largen, Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary
Whose Buddhism? Whose Identity? Presenting [and/or Misrepresenting] Shin Buddhism for a Christian Audience

Responding: Donald K. Swearer, Harvard University

This session presents four new perspectives on the growing conversation about Buddhism and multiple religious belonging. Current scholarship about multiple religious belonging focuses predominantly on Buddhist-Christian cases, asking questions about whether Christian theology has the flexibility to make possible, from a dogmatic standpoint, Buddhist-Christian multiple religious belonging.

The papers in this session shift conversation about multiple religious belonging away from issues of Christian theology and towards the development of a useful descriptive term for understanding issues of religious globalization and their expression at the level of individual religious commitment.

SBCS Annual Business Meeting

Terry Muck, Presiding
Saturday Nov. 23, 11:30 am -12:00 pm; Baltimore Convention Center, Room 318

If you have special announcements, concerns or requests, please contact Terry Muck or Sandy Kunz ahead of the meeting to be added to the agenda.

Comparative Theology/Contemplative Studies Panel

Overcoming False Paths in the Way of Conversion: Comparing Ignatius of Loyola’s Spiritual Exercises and Shantideva’s Way of the Bodhisattva

Sheraton Inner Harbor, Loch Raven II
Karen Enriquez, Xavier University, Presiding

Sunday - 3:00 pm-4:30 pm

Through the comparison of particular passages and themes in Ignatius of Loyola’s Spiritual Exercises and Shantideva’s Bodhicharyavatara, this panel will propose possible diagnoses and solutions for three interrelated, fundamental problems in contemporary understandings of contemplative practice in Catholic and Buddhist traditions: perceived problems of negative self-evaluation (sin, shame) in contemplative practice, and a recovery of the life-affirming nature of negative self-evaluation in the context of religious commitment; the problem of contemplative practice as a perceived escapism, including problems of disembodiment and dislocation from the specificity of one’s lived experience; and the problem of largely unconscious epistemologies that increasingly seek apophatic experience without understanding the important relationship between apophasis and kataphasis.

Through these comparisons, the panel seeks to demonstrate several connections between these problems, and to answer objections regarding the role and the power of spiritual practices for the life of faith in Catholic and Buddhist traditions.

Glenn Willis, Boston College

Negative Self-Evaluation in the Confession chapter of the Bodhicharyavatara and the First Week of the Exercises
Karen Enriquez, Xavier University

Surrender to the Transcendent and to the World: The Wisdom chapter of the Bodhicharyavatara and the Fourth Week of the Exercises

Kevin Johnson, Boston College

Poetic Knowledge -- Expanding Epistemology Through Contemplation and Inverted Intention in The Bodhicharyavatara and The Spiritual Exercises

Recent UTS Conference “Enlightenment and Liberation”

Union Theological Seminary (New York City) hosted a 2013 International Buddhist-Christian Conference April 17-20, 2013 on the theme “Enlightenment and Liberation: Engaged Buddhists and Liberation Theologians in Dialogue.” The conference brought together “Buddhist and Christian activists and scholars from around the world to discuss the unnecessary sufferings that afflict person and planet today.” It posed the questions:

“If widespread suffering, due to what Buddhists call greed and Christians call injustice, can serve as a common ground for dialogue, what are the similarities and differences in the ways Buddhists and Christians diagnose and seek to remedy these problems? What can they learn from each other and how can they collaborate in their common goal of ending suffering?”

More than thirty major scholars and activists gathered, most with a long history in Buddhist-Christian dialogue. The conference featured six plenary sessions, breakout sessions, several special events, a film screening, and a closing session. The plenary sessions had the following themes: The Suffering of Economic Injustice, The Suffering of War and Violence, The Suffering of Sexism, The Suffering of Racism, Ecological Suffering, and Spirituality and Liberation.

The event also commemorated the retirement of Dr. Paul Knitter, who in June concluded his tenure as the Paul Tillich Professor of Theology, World Religions and Culture. The event was sponsored by Great Seon Master Jinje, Supreme Patriarch of the Jogye order of Korean Buddhism and UTS. The event calendar remains online and media of the event is to be published. The conference also maintained a facebook page, which includes images, follow up articles, and other materials.

Grant/Study Offerings

The Robert H. N. Ho Family Foundation/ACLS Program in Buddhist Studies

COMPETITION

2. Postdoctoral Fellowships in Buddhist Studies November 5, 2013
3. Collaborative Research Grants in Buddhist Studies November 5, 2013

Applications for the new Robert H. N. Ho Family Foundation/ACLS Program in Buddhist Studies are now available online!
To start your application register at ofa.acls.org/ or click the Online Fellowship Application tab on the program’s page. You may view any of the application forms without registering by clicking the sample application links on the program page.

The new initiative supports research and teaching in Buddhist studies and is funded by a $1.9 million grant from The Robert H. N. Ho Family Foundation. Working with the Foundation, ACLS will offer an articulated set of fellowship and grant competitions to expand the understanding and interpretation of Buddhist thought in scholarship and society, to strengthen international networks of Buddhist studies, and to increase the visibility of innovative currents in those studies.

This is a global program. There are no restrictions as to the citizenship or home university of applicants, the location of their research, or the language of the scholarly work that results.

More information on the program may be found on the ACLS website at www.acls.org/programs/buddhist-studies/.

Please send inquiries to BuddhistStudies@acls.org.

Buddhist-Christian Studies

Our journal, Buddhist-Christian Studies, is published annually. It is a peer-reviewed academic journal, now in its 33rd volume. Each issue typically includes some articles revised from papers presented at the SBCS AAR panels, submitted or requested articles, recent news and views, and book reviews.

A style guide for submissions is available online (pdf).

To propose books for review or for related questions, contact Sid Brown. If you would like to share in the News or Views section, contact Jonathan Seitz. For other questions about the Journal, contact the co-editors Wakoh Shannon Hickey and C. Denise Yarbrough.

Updating Membership

Last year’s efforts to expand our membership have had some promising results. The SBCS owes it strength to the friendships and cooperation of its members. Current members are encouraged to reach out to those who may be interested in participating in SBCS. Memberships are set at $45 for regular members, $10 for students, and $25 for members over 65.

If you have not updated your membership, please do so now. Keeping up to date on membership guarantees you will receive the journal and will be included in all of our mailings. For membership questions contact SBCS Treasurer Guy McCloskey.

2014 Streng Award Call for Nominations

The Society for Buddhist-Christian Studies is now receiving nominations for the 2014 Frederick Streng Book Award for Excellence in Buddhist-Christian Studies. Nominations must be received by Dec. 31, 2013. The winner will be announced at the annual meeting of the Society.

The criteria for nominating and making the award are:
1. The subject matter of the book should be inspired by and relevant to Buddhist-Christian relations, but subject matter is not narrowly limited to books on dialogue or to books that are half on Christianity and half on Buddhism.
2. The scholarship must be original and the writing clear. The book must make an important contribution to issues relevant to the context of Buddhist-Christian dialogue.
3. Books can be considered for nomination within five years of their publication date (i.e. the 2014 award must be for a book published in 2009 or later).

Nominations can be made by any person other than the author(s) or editor(s), using the downloadable nomination form or the online form.

The completed form may be sent electronically to Abraham Vélez de Cea (abraham.velez@eku.edu), who will respond to all nominations.

Self-nominations are not permitted. Publishers of books must be willing to supply review copies to members of the committee for evaluation in order for the book to be considered.

SBRS Facebook Page

There is now a facebook page for the Society. The site provide updates, offer an informal location for people to learn about our work, and allows us to share materials on conferences, calls for papers, retreats, and other events.

You can just search for “Buddhist-Christian Studies” in facebook, or the static page is:
http://www.facebook.com/BuddhistChristianStudies
It is a “page,” and anyone may like it or comment on it.
Society for Buddhist Christian Studies Graduate Student Essay Call for Submissions

May 30 Deadline

In order to encourage the participation of interested graduate students in the Society for Buddhist-Christian Studies, the Society is continuing its annual graduate student essay award competition this spring.

We are now accepting any essays written by graduate students for classes related to the area of Buddhist-Christian studies. Faculty members are asked to encourage those students who have written excellent papers to submit those papers for consideration.

To submit a paper, students themselves should e-mail it to Glenn Willis at willisg@bc.edu. Together with the submission, students should include a cover letter that includes the following: student’s name, program, institution, e-mail address, the course for which the paper was prepared, and the professor of that course. The deadline for submission is May 30, 2014.

The winner of the competition will receive a $500 award, and must present the paper during the annual meeting of the Society for Buddhist-Christian Studies in Chicago, IL, Nov. 17-20, 2014.

Please do not hesitate to contact Glenn at the e-mail address above with any questions. Thank you!

BUDDHIST CHRISTIAN STUDIES IN THE NEWS

World Council of Churches 10th Assembly, Busan, Republic of Korea

30 October-9 November 2013

Theme, “God of Life, Lead us to Justice and Peace”

The World Council of Churches (WCC) meets approximately every seven years for its General Assembly. This year, for the second time, it meets in Asia, in Busan, Korea. A subtheme is often religious dialogue and this year’s meetings will include panels on “Religions Working Together for Peace and Freedom,” “Co-Existence with Neighbouring Religions,” “Exploring Christian Self-Identity in a World of Many Faiths,” and “Learning to Live in Multifaith Europe.”
