Styled Within

It's been 10 years since Tadashi Shoji opened his California flagship in South Coast Plaza, so when it came time for a redesign, he called for a space that's as sophisticated as his fashions. He'll unveil the masterpiece later this month. It's "an entirely new store concept created to deliver a luxurious, engaging experience," he says. Clients will step into a color scheme of creamy tones and soft pinks, with a wall of textured-glass louvers—a modern focal point—that can be reconfigured to create private shopping spaces. And a plasma screen will allow shoppers to experience Shoji's latest runway shows. How chic! 3333 Bristol St., Costa Mesa, tadashishoji.com —TB

IN THE BAG

Roger That! It comes at the request of that icon of couture, Ines de la Fressange: a line of bags rich in detail, design and inspiration—and befitting of Roger Vivier, which debuted its first Miss Viv' collection in 2009. This latest iteration is inspired by de la Fressange's travels to India, Japan, Spain and the United States. You'll find the designs exclusively in their respective regions, so the vibrant embroidered leather carrier seen here—the Miss Viv' Santa Folk—can only be found at the maison's South Coast Plaza boutique. Mais bien sûr! 3333 Bristol St., Costa Mesa, rogervivier.com —TB
