Award-Winning HEALTHY JUNK Restaurant Presents Fourth Annual VEGAN FAIRE

ANAHEIM, Calif. – July 10, 2017 – Located on the palm-tree and café light lined street of Center Street Promenade in CTR CITY Anaheim, the renowned Healthy Junk restaurant is holding its Fourth Annual Vegan Faire on Saturday, July 22, 2017 from 4:00 PM to 10:00 PM and is FREE to the public.

“We need a community gathering in every city, a coming together,” said Lynda Santos, Chef at Healthy Junk, when asked why she started the fair. “I wanted to bring in new people that might be afraid to try vegan food, that it would be an opportunity for them to see what it’s all about.”

With over 6,000 attendees last year, this year is a theme of “Motown Sound” with entertainment, wellness, dancing, curated goods and activities. The Vegan Faire strives to promote a vegan and health-conscious lifestyle through the curated selection of vendors and exhibitors participating.

“Becoming a vegan was a healthy lifestyle choice for me, a respect towards animals, and a mindful connection to the planet,” said Julie Shumaker, Director of Social Experience. “I’m also motivated by sustainability principles including less stress on our environment and more efficient ways to use our resources.”

The Center Street Promenade is conveniently located five minutes from the Interstate 5 freeway off of the Lincoln exit. With free parking and shuttle services available, Vegan Faire is a family-friendly event able to be enjoyed by all.
