Vegan Shoe of the Day: Vegan Ballet Slippers

Posted by Veggywood on Monday, September 5, 2011 · Leave a Comment

I always tell people that anything can be made vegan. As further proof I present: vegan ballet slippers! If you are a dancer you can now dress in cruelty-free clothing from head to... toe. The shoes are available through the Cynthia King Dance Studio in Brooklyn, New York. They are made of soft canvas with a non-slip sole, and come in pink or black, adult and children's sizes. They retail for only $24.95 a pair and can be purchased online HERE.

This year Cynthia King Vegan Ballet Slippers were selected by Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater's National Director of AileyCamp, Nasha Thomas-Schmitt, as the required slipper for two of the organization's innovative camps serving in-need children. Natalie Portman and Emily Deschanel are also fans.
