Biography

Growing up extremely poor in Toronto’s government housing district, Akarri learned very quickly that if she wanted to make it out, she would have to use everything she had and more to make her dreams a reality. With no more than a $20 mic, an old computer and a free mixing program, Akarri taught herself how to write songs, mix tracks and compose music electronically in the small 2 bedroom apartment she shared with her family.

Now Akarri is ready to release her single “Forever” to the world, a dreamy soundscape of emotional anguish and poetic darkness that speaks to her unstable relationship and addiction to the vices in her life. Rebellious by nature, Akarri is determined for her music to be unconventional. Strange but catchy, energetic but soulful, Akarri is paving the way for a new kind of sound and a new meaning to the words “creative independence”.
