A CULTURAL PLAN FOR WACO

Why a “Cultural Plan”?

We define success for our city in many ways. Vibrant arts and culture strengthen them all. Cities that invest strategically in their cultural life show growth in tourism, success in attracting and retaining talent and jobs, success in community resilience and revitalization, better educational outcomes, reduced unemployment, greater sense of community pride and social cohesion, and even a reduction in crime. By pooling our common goals for Waco into a consistent Cultural Plan, we can make sure that we do an effective job of setting targets and measuring success together. We aim to develop our cultural assets to make our city a great place to live, work and play.

An integrated approach

This Cultural Plan draws from a rigorous, ongoing process of community-wide visioning and public consultation. It shares common goals and objectives between our civic and cultural organizations and draws input from planning and urban development professionals. This approach to strategic planning acknowledges that when we work together, we do a better job of reaching our goals.

There’s also great research from Waco’s own Ray Perryman and, more recently, the Texas Cultural Trust, that explores the impact of the arts on economic and other metrics such as educational attainment. Americans for the Arts has also conducted four nationwide surveys into “Arts & Economic Prosperity”.
