Pioneering the Way for HIV+ Youth to Lead Their Generation

Goal: $10,000 # of youth: 35 program location: Lilongwe, Malawi

35 HIV+ youth learn to care for themselves and their HIV. Through a wide-range of activities, the youth become experts at taking care of themselves and develop the skills to socialize with other youth and adults, regardless of HIV status.

Because of their efforts to assist rural youth groups in fighting HIV, in 2015 F2F's HIV+ youth group met with Malawi's First Lady, congresswomen from the United States, and soccer superstars from other African nations.

In 2016, this group's Rising Stars, Africa's first HIV+ youth sports team, lead the way for youth to disclose their status in public and motivate others to get tested, seek treatment, and fight HIV stigma and discrimination.

- 35 HIV+ youth become able to care for themselves and their HIV
- enables 15 rural youth groups to get over 500 villagers tested for HIV
- develops outspoken HIV+ youth role models, leading a new generation of Malawians to make HIV a disease that is free of stigma and discrimination
